Third Wave?

Typhoid Toll Rises

ABERDEEN (Reuters)—Health authorities expressed fear that a third wave of typhoid may be sweeping this Scottish city as 30 more persons were admitted to hospital Wednesday, bringing the total to 301 in the two-week epidemic.

A hunt was launched throughout Britain for cans of possibly infected corned beef—said to be the source of the outbreak.

Latest official figures listed 262 confirmed cases of typhoid and 39 suspected ones in the northeastern port city.

ONE DEATH

The only death reported here in connection with the typhoid was that of an elderly woman who also suffered from two other diseases.

As the search for the infected cans of corned beef spread, county councils and local health committees banned corned beef from school menus and some city stores.

OTHER CASES

In other parts of Britain 13 cases were reported—six of them definitely confirmed as typhoid.

Aberdeen's medical officer, Dr. Ian McQueen, called for the names of two suspected brands of corned beef to be revealed "in the public interest."

Kissed to Death

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI)—The life-like model used by the St. John Ambulance Brigade to demonstrate the "kiss of life"—mouth-to-mouth respiration—has been "kissed to death" and is completely worn out, the brigade's superintendent said Wednesday.

Rivers Over Banks

By The CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia rivers are on a spring run-off rampage, forcing families to flee low ground in several communities.

Late-coming rivers spilled their banks Wednesday, sweeping a farmhouse away, covering roads, cutting a rail line, giving school children a holiday and eroding valuable farm land.

HARD HIT

Cottonwood Island on the outskirts of Prince George was the hardest hit of the areas as waters of the Nechako River swirled around more than a score of homes and forced closure of a school.

Residents began evacuation over the last dry road to Prince George as drinking water became polluted and garbage drifted down main streets.

READY TO MOVE

Civil Defence authorities were standing by in case the road link was washed out as the Nechako continued to rise.

West of Prince George in north-central B.C., 50 families in Terrace prepared to evacuate their flood-threatened homes at an hour's notice. Three families moved last Tuesday.

Paul Bogeland, Civil Defence co-ordinator, said the town itself was beyond the reach of the rampaging Skeena River but the 50 homes lay in a low area.

HIGHWAY CLOSED

Covered by two feet of water, the Trans-Provincial Highway was closed east and west of the threatened town and ferries traversing the Skeena were halted.

The Canadian National Railways line to coastal Prince Rupert was washed out by the boiling Morice River near Houston, midway between Terrace and Prince George.

TRAIN HELD

The CNR sent repair crews to the half-mile washout from both sides of the damaged section. A westbound train was held at Smithers and passengers taken by bus to Prince George over partially flooded roads.

Three Suffer Crash Burns

LADYSMITH—Three unidentified people were taken to Nanaimo hospital for treatment of burns last night after their car turned over at Brenton Page Road and the highway, 3½ miles north of here. The car was a total loss.

Chong Wing Ming, 46, of 817 Kings, is charged with eight counts of conspiracy involving alleged forged passports. The charges involve 26 Chinese.

BROTHER-IN-LAW HELD

While he was quietly being brought before the court, his brother-in-law, Quon Chung Heng, was arrested in Dauphin, Man., and faces three similar charges.

The case may have repercussions all over western Canada, police feel—wherever there is a Chinese community.

36 INVOLVED

Police and special Crown prosecutor W. R. McIntyre will attempt to prove the two applied for passports from Ottawa in the names of the 26, who then entered Canada under the guise of returning travellers.

An RCMP officer said the 26 have since settled all over western Canada, and there are "quite a few nervous people in Chinatowns all over the country."

LONG PROBE

Police, fearful of undermining the Crown's case, are reluctant to discuss too many details of their investigation, but it is known the case has been under study since last August.

At that time, RCMP Cpl. W. J. Halloran, based at Vancouver, led the special passport and visa squad in a painstaking investigation through reams of documents dating back to 1961.

SCORES OF LEADS

They traced scores of leads through "more than one" of Canada's notoriously tight-lipped Chinese communities before finally laying the charges.

Quaint Chinese Custom Nightmare for Court

Because of a quaint custom among Chinese in Canada, the Immigration Act proceedings now before magistrate's court is the kind about which newspapermen and court stenographers have nightmares.

The following is a sample of the numbing nomenclature of principals in the current case:

Wu Chiu Cheung, also known as Mag See Quon; Wu Kwok Kit, also known as Won Kin Shon; Chau Wing Yuen; Li Sung Kwan, also known as Tao Fook Hing; Kwan Ming San, also known as Robert Lloyd Lim; Kwan Chi Ping, also known as Jung Sue Ming; Chen Wai Lam, also known as Alfred Chu; Chau Kin Ping, also known as Pon Conn; Lee Kam King; Lee Lai Foon; Lee Shoo Shen; Lee Wai Sing; Lang Cheng Lain; Lee Ngok Kwan, also known as Jimmy G. It took 10 minutes yesterday morning, for Robert Davidson, also known as a magistrate's court official, to read the list of names and details of the charge. He didn't stuff a line.

Engineer Gives Life

BRADFORD, England (Reuters)—An English railroad engineer gave his life Wednesday in a last-minute effort to warn passengers that the train he was driving was about to crash.

Great Victory

Let's Join and Win Barry Tells Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona followed up his "great victory" in the California primary Wednesday with a plea to Governor

Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to join him in mobilizing the Republican party to win the U.S. presidency in November.

But Rockefeller, Goldwater's narrowly defeated rival in the California balloting for 86 crucial Republican convention votes, made it clear he is not halting his drive for the Republican presidential nomination.

NOT DROPPING OUT

"I'm not dropping out of anything," Rockefeller told a press conference in New York. Republican leaders divided sharply on the meaning of Goldwater's California victory.

"It is going to be very difficult for the opposition to put together any coalition (to stop him) because they don't have the delegate votes," said former senator William F. Knowland of California. He managed Goldwater's California campaign.

Spry 'Dev' Cuffs British As U.K. Envoy Looks On

OTTAWA (CP)—President Eamon de Valera of Ireland, a spry 81-year-old, stuck it in the eye of the British Wednesday in an off-the-cuff speech to the Canadian Club.

"They used us as a cheap ranch," he said.

Sir Henry: Impassive

Two places down the head table, Sir Henry Lintott, British high commissioner to Canada, remained impassive. "Dev," who later departed by air for Boston, said "Britain was having it from us in both ways"—as a cheap ranch for food and as a market for industrial goods.

Earlier, External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland and Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin conferred for 50 minutes. They spent nearly half of this time on the situation in Cyprus, where Canadian and Irish troops are serving with the United Nations force.

Informants said the two ministers also discussed the Congo, the next UN General Assembly and the July conference here on establishment of an international peacekeeping force.

Mr. de Valera, who received three standing ovations at the crowded Canadian Club luncheon, recalled that he had come close to visiting Canada once before—in 1919 and 1920 when he was on a fund-raising campaign in the United States.

But he had been a little anxious about landing on British territory. He might have been free no longer to carry on his fight for Irish independence.

Centenary to Come Deep in Recession

MINNA, Ont. (CP)—A pro in its fourth year, will continue the university's faculty of social sciences, told a Manitoba labor-management seminar sponsored by the University of Manitoba to expect a slowdown in the economy beginning in 1965 and a recession to follow.

Dr. O. J. Firestone, vice-dean of the university's faculty of social sciences, told a Manitoba labor-management seminar sponsored by the University of Manitoba to expect a slowdown in the economy beginning in 1965 and a recession to follow. However, he said the period of recession should be followed by a period of economic expansion "probably greater than anything we have seen since the end of the Second World War."

Dr. Firestone, a former top economist with the federal trade department, said the current economic expansion, now

Automation Could 'Rip Us Apart'

By DAN POWERS

EDMONTON (CP)—The time may come when society must decide whether to keep the street-corner newsboy, apartment guard, factory worker and grocery clerk, instead of allowing machines to do their jobs, a United States sociologist said Wednesday.

Dr. Burton R. Clark, an associate professor in the Centre for the Study of Higher Education at the University of California, Berkeley, said that if through research society discovered automation was ripping apart social values, then it may have to "slow down automation or stop its processes."

It would be a good idea, the sociologist said, to undertake a study of young, non-working persons in families on relief to see how they would react or adapt to a life of leisure without work—a possibility that automation has raised.

"My plea is for a great deal of research so that we can make a reasonable judgment on the effects of automation," Dr. Clark told an international conference on education and automation sponsored by the University of Alberta.

Automation, Dr. Clark said, had had "awesome effects." The street-corner newsboy, for example, "was the eyes on the street." Before he was replaced by the metal newspaper dis-

Pope Paul prays at tomb of Pope John XXIII.

Plea of 50,000 People:

Make John a Saint

VATICAN CITY (AP)—In the north Italian birthland of Pope John XXIII, a move was started Wednesday to make him a saint. A petition signed by 50,000 John, who died a year ago Wednesday. Beatification is a step toward canonization as a saint. Bishop Clemente Gaddi of Bergamo said the petition would be sent promptly to the Congregation of Rites at the Vatican. The congregation handles causes for beatification and canonization. Beatification is the process of establishing that one may be publicly venerated by Roman Catholics in a particular area. It bestows the title of "blessed."

STRONG FACTOR

It will be up to Pope Paul and the Congregation of Rites to determine whether a cause for beatification should be opened. Vatican sources said a petition with so many names—showing popular devotion to John XXIII—would be a strong factor. There is no fixed time for beatification. Pope Pius X was the last pontiff beatified and canonized.

Boatload Arrested

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Six Cubans and two American photographers, arrested in their arms-laden boat near Cuba after a chase through Bahamas waters, were brought to Nassau Wednesday and questioned.

The British destroyer Decoy discovered the group Monday during a routine check of the Out Islands, favorite hiding place for anti-Castro Cuban exiles.

Long Haul

Veteran tallyho driver Jim McKibbin, 66, 1145 Oscar Street, handed over reins yesterday to retire after 17 years of driving tourists around Victoria. Since 1947 Mr. McKibbin estimates he's driven equivalent of three times round world. He came to Victoria to retire after farming in Alberta, but took on job as driver. He may drive some more if needed during peak summer season. —(Jim Ryan)

Family Known in Sports

Native Son Basil Peden, 54, Dies Suddenly While at Work

Well-known active son and member of a prominent family, Basil "Baise" Alexander Peden, 54, died suddenly at work Tuesday.

Mr. Peden was the founder and owner of Peden's Store, 723 Johnson, and was on a house call when he collapsed and died.

EXPANDED

He founded the business in the late 20s, dealing in shoes and oil burners. Later he added major appliances.

Mr. Peden was born Aug. 4, 1910, the son of the late Robert and Rose Peden. He attended Kingston Street and Sir James Douglas Schools.

He was sports-minded, a noted sprinter in bicycle racing. Recently he had sponsored a girls' softball team and a circuit-racing team.

He is survived by his widow Ethel; two daughters Mrs. Georgina Clapham, of Malahat, and Mrs. Bazette Blackstock, of Victoria; two grandchildren, one brother, Claude, of Victoria; and one sister, Mrs. Roberta Stark, of Victoria.

Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros. Floral Chapel, on Friday, June 5 at 2 p.m. Rev. Canon George Biddle officiating, followed by cremation.

City Man Charged

Yesterday, defence counsel George Gregory asked that his client be allowed until Friday for election of the manner by which he wishes to be tried.

Mr. Gregory said the trial or preliminary hearing of the case could take several weeks, and it may be necessary to have the case heard exclusively before a magistrate with none of the usual press of cases taking up his time.

He asked that Chong be freed on his own bond pending trial, as the accused has been a resident of Victoria since 1941, and has a family here.

FEARS UNFOUNDED

Mr. Gregory said his client has known charges would be laid since last August. Fears he would flee the country were unfounded, as he has surrendered his own, valid, Canadian passport.

Mr. McIntyre said he had been instructed by the attorney-general's department to ask for substantial bail. He said this would mean $10,000 or $15,000.

Magistrate Oster fixed bail at $5,000 for Chong, who has seven dependent children, a wife and aged mother in Victoria.

Quon will be escorted to Victoria from Dauphin to face trial. He will be arraigned in court here upon his arrival later this week.

Police say they do not know his permanent address as he is "lost from all over."

'Roadblock' Denied On Eskimos

OTTAWA (UPI)—Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing Wednesday denied he has placed a "roadblock" in the path of transferring Quebec Eskimo administration to the provincial government.

Laing, in a strongly-worded statement to the Commons, rejected Quebec resources minister Rene Levesque's statement Tuesday that the federal minister's "roadblock" had forced him to break off negotiations.

The northern affairs minister said the "impasse" the two governments have faced repeatedly was the definition of "consultation" with the Eskimos about the transfer.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's official holdings of gold and U.S. dollars increased by $20,300,000 to $2,500,400,000 in terms of U.S. dollars at May 31 from $2,480,100,000 a month previous, the finance department and Bank of Canada reported.

publican conventions, said of Goldwater's narrow win: "It wasn't a very good showing... I don't think this assures him of the nomination."

An Associated Press survey of states still to choose delegations for next month's convention showed Goldwater will be close to a first ballot victory.

FIRST BALLOT
He already has 438 first ballot votes and 236 more delegates remain to be picked in 15 states and Puerto Rico. Political leaders and observers said Goldwater will get between 145 and 180 of them with 23 more up for grabs. Goldwater would go into the convention with 628 to 650 of the votes needed.

Girdle May Offer Comfort If Spinal Cartilage 'Worn'

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 80 years old and my back aches so bad I went to the doctor and had it X-rayed. He said the cartilage had worn out and for me to wear a girdle. I never heard of such a thing. Is this common in older people?—MRS. JANE W.

Perhaps he said "worn" instead of "worn out." Between the bones of the spine are discs or cushions of cartilage. In time, they become thinner or "worn."

This is one of the reasons why some old people aren't as tall as they were in youth.

We all can expect a certain amount of this wearing. It can result in pressure on certain nerves which emerge from the spine, and a suitable girdle (to help hold the back in a better position and relieve pressure) is frequently the answer to such pains.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am planning a trip abroad. I have had typhoid and smallpox vaccinations. Will a booster of tetanus and typhoid be all that is required, or will I have to take the whole series again?—G. T.

Smallpox must be repeated every three years. You can't get back into this country without proof. Tetanus should be repeated every four years but it is not mandatory. If you are going into a danger area, have a typhoid booster.

Paratyphoid isn't required but it is a good safeguard against severe intestinal upsets, and I strongly recommend it. Typhoid and paratyphoid are usually combined in one preparation of the vaccine.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a teacher, and drink a great deal of milk because of a stomach ulcer. Someone told me recently that kidney stones are formed by calcium deposits and that too much milk will cause them. Should I cut down on milk? If I have to choose between the ulcer and the kidney stones, I'd prefer the ulcer. —W. H.

Yes, calcium is one of the constituents in kidney stones, but not because of calcium in the diet. We don't, in fact, know precisely how the stones develop, although infections such as kidney infections certainly can stimulate their formation.

One can have painful calcium deposits elsewhere in the body (often in the feet or joints) but not because of milk. Calcium is deposited in those areas as part of a healing process in irritated or infected parts. You apparently do not have kidney stones but you do have an ulcer.

Forget about "someone's dreary scare story," and keep on drinking milk.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have frequent and severe smarting behind my right shoulder, in the neck region. Pain can occur in any position, standing, sitting, lying down, driving a car. Mostly from my description of the symptoms, one doctor called it a "hooked rib." Is there any treatment short of surgery? —K. W. N.

X-ray is the best method of finding out what your trouble really is. If it is a "hooked rib" that means a congenital anomaly, one rib being placed a segment higher than usual. This can press on nerves and cause pain. (This is also called a "cervical rib.")

Arthritis of the spine can also cause similar symptoms, however, so you need to know which it is.

As a rule, removal of the cervical rib is the only suitable solution, but it is straightforward surgery and not to be feared.

Flag Figures

THE prime minister's office gleefully reports that of the 8,000 letters it has received on the flag issue, two-thirds favor the maple leaf design over the Canadian Red Ensign.

However, before Mr. Pearson assumes that this tabulation is a clear indication that Canadians are behind him in his desire to fly his new pennant over Canada, he should make a further study of the facts.

The facts are these: For reasons best known to himself Mr. Pearson has denied the people of Canada the right to individually express their views on the matter through an official plebiscite. He has also negated his own pledge to make the issue the subject of a free vote in the House of Commons by warning all members that his government will stand or fall on the result.

Because of this sad situation a number of Canadian newspapers across the country have taken it upon themselves to conduct a national poll to enable ordinary citizens to have their say on which flag shall fly over their nation.

After one week of voting the consolidated results show a completely different answer to the one Prime Minister Pearson's office is now busily publicizing.

As of Monday afternoon 49,697 ballots had been cast by readers of 34 newspapers. Of these the Canadian Red Ensign received 30,637 votes and the maple leaf flag, 19,060.

Nor do these figures include the thousands upon thousands of letters supporting the Canadian Red Ensign which have poured into the Ottawa government offices during the past few years. Only recently did State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne admit under questioning in the House that 98,798 signatures had been tabulated on letters and petitions favoring the Canadian Red Ensign.

Massive as they are, these figures are still held to be incomplete by one member of Parliament who claims that an additional 14 petitions in favor of the Canadian Red Ensign and bearing as many as 16,000 signatures have somehow gone astray in the state secretary's office.

Even if these "misplaced" signatures continue to be ignored, a tabulation taken from known or admitted petitions, letters and votes forwarded either to the government or news media organizations—including a Victoria newspaper—show that Canadians in favor of retaining the Canadian Red Ensign as their flag outnumber those who prefer the maple leaf pennant by 134,282 to 24,073. A proportion of approximately five to one.

These are the facts, Mr. Pearson. Study them.

Airline Semantics

THIS week Trans-Canada Air Lines became "Air Canada" for all official purposes, within the national boundaries as well as without. In semantic parlance the new name is presumed to suit its international standing and the extent of its oceanic flight routes, although one could also envisage it as simply meaning the use of the air over Canada.

One had gathered that TCA officials were quite happy with the name that has carried the airline to renown and a fine record of operation, and didn't quite see the need for any change. But the government, TCA being a government-owned airline, concluded otherwise.

It will be purely a coincidence, of course, that in Quebec for the past decade and more the new all-embracing caption "Air Canada" has been in use, a contradiction if semantics are to hold sway, for Quebec is within the transportation boundaries of the nation and could surely not be offended by the name Trans-Canada. Nor do TCA's aircraft fly the Red Ensign that upsets the sensibilities of that province.

However "Air Canada" will undoubtedly serve the nation proudly just as Trans-Canada has done over the years, but it is a pity perhaps to see those familiar initials, TCA, pass from the scene. They were known high, wide and handsomely.

It will be interesting to see, in addition, if the maple leaf design which has been an adornment of TCA's flight bags is also to undergo a change to conform with the "stylized" pattern of Mr. Pearson's projected flag.

Puzzling Statistics

FIGURES alone don't always tell a whole or a true tale, even to those who are expert in interpreting them. Thus the provincial motor vehicle branch is mystified by two sets of statistics in apparent variance, and at a loss to explain the conflict except by guessing. One shows an extraordinarily sharp increase in traffic accidents in British Columbia in 1964 to the end of March, the latest date to which complete information in this respect has been compiled—a boost from 6,476 in the three-month period last year to 8,176 this year. The other shows that to the end of May, the total of road deaths was 124, exactly the same as in the corresponding part of 1963.

It may well be that one official of the branch is right in surmising that the startling upturn in the number of accidents was the result of a mild spring which would encourage people to use the roads in many parts of the province more and earlier than usual. The same line of thought could be extended to the conjecture that although traffic was heavier than normal in the early part of the year, drivers were generally cautious because of obvious dangers in weather and road conditions—about speed in particular—with a resulting, compensating decline in the average severity of mishaps.

The fact that fatalities during five months were at the same level as last year despite the growth of the population and the number of vehicles on the road thus may appear as a matter for comfort and congratulation, even though no consolation for the people who have suffered injury, loss and sorrow in the climbing volume of wreckage.

But there is a lesson and a warning here, if the interpretation of the contradiction between the death and accident figures is correct. It is that with hazard less apparent than in the slipperier months and a more carefree summer spirit, many motorists will abandon the caution imposed on them by clearly adverse conditions, and the total of road deaths for the year will again leap upward in similar fashion to the general accident rate. There is a supporting hint for this supposition in the May statistics: five more fatalities than in the same month a year ago.

It is hence too early for British Columbia to pat its own back for keeping down its traffic death toll, but not too soon to take alarm at the steep rise in accidents.

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax

By TOM TAYLOR

THERE has been some exquisitely amazing phraseology employed in various places by various people caught up in the current nuances of national flags, when they can be flown, to whom they belong, what they represent, what they look like, et cetera, et cetera. But quite the most astounding, surely, are the views credited to Commander Alan Beddoe, Ottawa's heraldic authority and the man presumably mainly responsible for the Pearson maple leaf flag design.

Unless he is quoted wrongly by the columnist who cites him, Gerald Waring, every Canadian of British heritage, indeed every Canadian no matter his antecedents, is in for a shock to be told Britain doesn't have a national flag.

First though let me quote the tidbit about what we have always believed was the British flag, the Union Jack. In Commander Beddoe's opinion it is an "heraldic monstrosity," although he concedes, "It's the most glamorous flag the world ever saw."

But a monstrosity! How inexcusable then that Britain's College of Arms, the fount of the commander's own heraldic knowledge, should have put up with it for 200 years and more.

But to the people of Britain, leaving Canadians aside altogether.

They are not a nation, says Commander Beddoe. The United Kingdom is not a nation but instead three kingdoms united, and, not being a nation, has no national flag.

The world has been living under an illusion. The British "nation" doesn't exist.

Someone should tell the Westminster government about this; it is not behaving as it should. In its latest issue of "Britain: an official handbook," it lists no fewer than 129 agencies of government and other institutions all labelled "national."

The National Coal Board, for instance, the National Health Service, National Savings, National Grid, National Portrait Gallery, National Trust, et al. And when the Chancellor of the Exchequer presents his budget he certainly refers to the "national debt." Those soldiers called up under "National Service" also had the impression they were enlisted for the nation's military forces.

And all these official captions must be wrong, for if Britain is not a nation it cannot have "national" agencies.

Even Sir Winston Churchill, historian of the English-speaking peoples and their ways, was seriously at fault. He called his wartime administration a "national government," and also, no one at Westminster ever faulted him. He erred earlier too, when just before the war he warned Hitler that "the British nation have reached the end of their patience."

There is to be a Commonwealth meeting in London shortly, attended by the prime ministers of the associated nations. It will be presided over by Sir Alec Douglas-Home, who obviously shouldn't be there if, as the commander affirms, his country isn't a nation.

You will excuse me if I conclude that either Commander Beddoe or Mr. Waring is talking nonsense.

Either or both should take a trip across the Atlantic and see if the Union Jack isn't flown as a "national" flag.

As to the flag itself, there is the other astonishing statement that the Union Jack is a royal badge and is not for display by the populace.

This is a further weird proposition which a visit to Britain would certainly put right, with the Jack flying there from countless poles all over the country, and every man jack entitled to hoist it as of right. The Union Jack is a royal badge and is not for display by the populace.

The Union Jack is to be regarded as the national flag, and may be used generally by British subjects on land. As it was long before even this reminder.

(Incidentally, by virtue of the Canadian Citizenship Act every Canadian "is a British subject," and thus doesn't need new Ottawa permission to fly the Union Jack.)

But how many more queer statements are we to get about flags and their users, heraldic experts notwithstanding.

A Washington View

Southeast Asia—Gathering Storm

By DAVID MACLAREN

WASHINGTON is already experiencing political wind gusts from the spreading military defeat and strategic debacle in South Viet Nam and Laos. The U.S. and its client governments are losing the war.

Control of people and terrain in Southeast Asia is passing steadily into Communist hands. When the full extent of this setback is realized by the American public, a political storm will break in the United States. And standing full in the blast will be Secretary McNamara and his boss President Johnson.

For the past half year, and indeed since the coup that overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem, early stages of this guerrilla war, the political and military situation in South Viet Nam has been changing from bad to worse. A large fraction of the strategic hamlets built a year ago have been lost. The Viet Cong are attacking in larger units and with heavier armament. Often they no longer avoid combat with regular government forces as they did during the early stages of this guerrilla war. The desertion rate among government troops and the home guard is rising sharply.

U.S. military in South Viet Nam, whether serving as advisers to ground units or flying helicopters in "logistical support," are annoyed and frustrated by the unwillingness of government forces to push home attacks against guerrillas. Typically, South Vietnamese troops' commanders are slow to move against Viet Cong groups that have been located in a village or the jungle, and they delay in ways that provide the Communists with tactical warning and escape routes. Nor will government forces ordinarily operate at night.

Part of the trouble is that many among the South Vietnamese forces do not consider this struggle between Chinese Communism and American capitalism to be their war. The government of General Nguyen Khanh is less than a year old and came to power by setting it. General Khanh seems to some Vietnamese to be more an American agent than a national leader. Hence, among government troops that have not yet experienced Communism, there is often a reluctance to kill compatriots who happen to prefer Hanoi to Saigon. They are not going to murder other Vietnamese, or themselves be killed in return, at the bequest of white-skinned foreigners from across the world.

In South Viet Nam there is a general war weariness. True, in Saigon there are wealthy merchants profiting from the war's continuance, and the Catholic professional classes know what to expect from Communism. But the mass of the peasants in the villages are apathetic and want to be left alone.

First there was the Japanese invasion of the Second World War, then the return of the French, next the Chinese insurgent "liberation" movement, and now U.S. pilots are attacking villages on occasion with weapons that kill indiscriminately. Moreover, and welcome to villagers in areas under Viet Cong "protection," landlords cannot extract rents and the government cannot collect taxes. So far the new Communist rulers have been moderate in their exactions.

Finally, there is a widespread feeling that Chinese Communism is an inexorable "wind of change," and will prevail. It is believed that eventually the Americans will withdraw and Saigon will fall. Any village leader who has been "loyal" to his government can then expect harsh and explary punishment from the Viet Cong. So, while General Khanh's forces exercise nominal control during daylight hours they are present, the Communists are mostly in control at night time and wherever government forces are absent.

Today there is no effective government in South Viet Nam outside Saigon. The overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem, accomplished with U.S. state department sympathy, marked the beginning of the end of organized rule. The whole administrative structure is in shambles after two military coups.

It is now recognized that the intense propaganda campaign against Diem, charging religious persecution of the Buddhists, was largely fake. As many monks have incinerated themselves since Diem's assassination, and which had its main pagoda raided, is now known to have been infiltrated from the North. But the New York newspaper correspondents in Saigon, ignorant of the country and looking for a story, were more successful in eliminating Diem than were the Viet Cong. And what happened to Diem, a loyal ally of the U.S., has not been lost on other leaders in Southeast Asia whom the U.S. would like to support.

The road to strategic defeat in backward countries is too often paved with the best of liberal intentions and Western values.

The situation in neighboring Laos has become extremely grave during May and increased military pressure on Saigon through the Plain des Jars is beginning.

Many American officers and men are returning to the U.S., most of them bitter and frustrated, and they talk to relatives, friends, and even journalists, although they are all under strict orders not to discuss the Viet Nam "dirty" war when they arrive stateside.

These untoward events, 10,000 miles away in Southeast Asia, are having repercussions in Washington.

There have already been casualties among officials. The former assistant secretary of state for Far Eastern affairs (Roger Hillman), proponent of strategic hamlets and the overthrow of Diem, departed rather promptly.

Counsellor Walt Rostow, who once interested himself in Southeast Asia, has decided that Latin American affairs are a safer concern. General Harkins has been replaced. Secretary McNamara, who has made five "inspection" trips to Saigon and returned confident each time save the last, has lost some reputation. Governor Harriman, who in the state department has held a watching brief over Southeast Asia, looks no better than he ever did.

The main question though is what President Johnson can do between now and the November elections. The general view here is that he can only do more of the same—i.e., send additional military personnel and material to South Viet Nam. But there is no reason to suppose that these extra forces will be any more effective than those already placed at the disposal of General Khanh.

Johnson's dilemma is easy to define but hard to resolve. The kind of actions he can take during the next five months will hardly affect the basic causes of defeat. And the entirely new approaches that would be effective among the villagers can have no effect within five years. For the time being Johnson must hold Saigon with brute military strength and put the best face he can upon the debacle elsewhere in the country. He must pretend there is a South Vietnamese government. But for how long can the truth be withheld from U.S. voters? That is the question being asked in Washington.

Justice in Canada

SENTENCING by Canadian criminal courts is in a mess.

Wide variations in sentencing occur in Canada for the same offence, variations which have little justification in law or in fact. Here are some examples. Theft is the most common offence before the courts. One study shows that after conviction, 16 per cent of sentences are suspended, on a national average. But Quebec suspends only 11 per cent, Manitoba 34 per cent or three times as many. Penitentiary sentences are given for 5 per cent of convictions, on a national average. But Quebec has a rate of 10 per cent, twice the national average and five times the rate in Manitoba. Clearly there is a wide variation between provinces in their interpretation of our national Criminal Code.

Another fact is that some provinces have no provincial jails. Some local jails in Nova Scotia are so wretched that courts will not send a man to them; rather, they will impose a much longer sentence in a penitentiary. Here is a patent injustice in sentencing because of the failure of a provincial government to discharge its proper responsibility.

There are also wide disparities in thinking and practice between courts of appeal in different provinces, and they set the law. A classic example is the directly opposite opinions held by two provincial courts of appeal in Ontario and British Columbia, in the cases of Jones and Allen. In both cases the charge was the same, indecent assault on a young girl. In both cases the accused were married men with children of their own, who had assaulted young girls about their own homes. In both cases it was a first offence and expert evidence showed that the accused would be harmed rather than benefited by a prison term. In the Jones case (Ontario) the magistrate had imposed a fine with probation, the accused to continue under treatment. On appeal by the Crown the appeal court changed the sentence, quashing the fine and substituting a prison sentence of six months definite and 12 months indefinite; one judge dissented.

In the Allen case (B.C.) the magistrate had imposed a sentence of two years' imprisonment. On appeal, the appeal court had the accused examined by a mental health clinic which recommended against imprisonment and for probation, with out-patient treatment, the same recommendation as in Ontario. The B.C. appeal court accepted the recommendation. Clearly our higher courts have no agreement on sentencing under our national Criminal Code. In fact, examination of sentencing decisions by the provincial appeal courts shows a chaotic situation to exist across Canada.

So what? Of course situations differ and there will be variations in sentences for the same charged offence. But with a uniform criminal code, need we have such opposite and conflicting practices? Clearly there

State Visit

Germany Delighted

By NEAL ASCHERSON

from Bonn

"AT LAST!" The Queen is coming! This was the headline of West Germany's biggest popular paper the day after the news of the visit of Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to Germany broke. There can be little doubt that the Germans are delighted by the news.

For at least a year, casual acquaintances met on trains or in restaurants have burst out with the question: "But when is the Queen coming here? Surely soon..." Everybody I speak to here is immensely satisfied—and relieved.

One state visit is supposed to be followed, at a reasonably close interval, by a return visit. Yet 6½ years will have gone by between the state visit to Britain of the late President Theodore Heuss and the Queen's arrival on the Rhine in May, 1965.

The truth is that the Heuss visit was not a great success. Though Heuss himself was a man of high intelligence and a distinguished writer, and though the British press referred hopefully to "Papa Heuss," the British public behaved coldly towards the first German head of state to visit the country since before the First World War. It was clear to everybody that the visit had been a little premature, and that a few more years would have to elapse before it was returned.

In the interval, much happened. The Queen herself has had two children, cancelling all engagements for long periods. There was the time when Britain was knocking at the door of the Common Market, and it was felt in London that a royal visit to West Germany while the Brussels negotiations were still in progress would look like an attempt to force a way into the community by appeal to public opinion. Ironically enough, it was feared that the Queen might take offence. And there was a third difficulty: the bad relations which developed between the Macmillan administration and Dr. Adenauer towards the end of the old chancellor's tenure of office.

Now Anglo-German relations are improving with the entry to power of Dr. Erhard, and the Common Market consideration no longer applies. There were, indeed, those who thought that the Queen might well make her visit this year and open the British Week which has just closed in Düsseldorf, but the Queen's last pregnancy intervened. These visits, however, take a prodigious time to organize.

This will be the first visit of a reigning British monarch to Germany since May 1913, when King George V and Queen Mary came here in the year before the First World War.

The influential German daily Die Welt comments on its front page: "Germans and Englishmen, not all of them but most, have largely overcome their mistrust. A British minister, Mr. Edward Heath, has received the Charlemagne Prize at Aachen. Chancellor Erhard has many friends in Britain."

In London, The Times remarked that the visit should be "valuable and timely." The Daily Express, to be relied on as a fountain of anti-German polemic, reported the project of a royal visit without heat but did not omit to mention that King George VI had come within a few miles of entering Germany when he visited British troops in battle at the end of the last war.

The Queen and Prince Philip will obviously receive a huge welcome. The prince, with his many German relations, is a familiar figure at various social occasions in Germany, but the man in the street has yet to make his acquaintance.

For years, West Germans have resented the fact that Britain, a country which they perhaps naively expected to be the first to understand and forgive, remained more cynical and hostile towards their republic and its intentions than any other Western nation. This mistrust, it should be said, though it may be lessening, is still far from dissolved.

This is to be a state visit, like the visit of President de Gaulle, but unlike the "working visit" of President Kennedy last summer. It may last some five or six days, and some of the time will probably be spent with the Queen's relations in Germany. But no program as yet exists.

The only cloud on the horizon is the eternal Berlin problem. The Germans would obviously like the Queen to visit "the German capital." But Britain does not recognize that West Berlin is an integral part of the federal republic; a state visit there could be construed as implying recognition, and is therefore not likely.

President Kennedy, so curious is protocol, could go there without committing himself to anything because his visit was a "working" one. With a year to wait, West German enthusiasm may cool a little and criticism develop of an itinerary which leaves out Berlin.

Spy Trial Curiously Timed

Swedes Counter Khrushchev Visit

By ROLAND HUNTER
from Stockholm

The trial of Colonel Stig Wennerstrom, charged with treason and espionage for Russia, has been in progress for the past two months and, although most of it has been held in camera, transcripts of the police interrogations were released this week as a consequence of public demand.

The original cause of the demand was the widespread suspicion that suppression of the evidence was calculated to protect the minister of Defence, Sven Anderson, who is suspected of negligence in ignoring warnings from the security police about Colonel Wennerstrom.

But the result is of international interest.

Wennerstrom is accused of spying for Russia for 15 years, between 1948 and 1963, but his interest in espionage started long before that. He seems to be that almost fictional character, a man born to spy.

His first contact with the world of international spying took place as a young professional officer in Riga, the capital of Latvia, in 1933. This was the listening post on Russia during the 30s.

Wennerstrom was sent there by the Swedish Air Force to learn Russian, which he did with emigre families. He says he met there an American citizen working for the British Secret Service.

By his own account, Wennerstrom was fascinated from that point on by intelligence work. Sent to Moscow as Swedish air attaché in the autumn of 1940, he made contact with his German opposite number, for whom he was able to obtain information on the area between Murmansk and Leningrad which was extremely valuable for operation Barbarossa, then being planned.

In this way Wennerstrom's name was known to the German intelligence organization, and when this was taken over by the Americans after the war, Wennerstrom says he was approached by contacts at their Stockholm embassy to continue his work.

Again, by his own account, he did so when sent again as air attaché to Moscow in 1948. The information is supposed to have been about possible bomb targets for the United States strategic air force.

In the meantime, Wennerstrom had begun to work for the Russians, and for some time appears to have acted as a double agent.

Wennerstrom says he sold for $10,000 the plans of a secret Swedish airfield, the first of his work for the Russians.

Throughout his service in Moscow until 1949, as a staff officer in Stockholm until 1952, as Swedish air attaché in Washington from 1952 until 1957, and subsequently at the Defence Staff and Foreign Office in Stockholm, Wennerstrom worked diligently.

According to the report, Wennerstrom betrayed Swedish defence secrets and, through his Washington contacts, details of American rockets, bombers, and NATO preparedness.

The Russians valued the confidence which they knew Swedish officers enjoyed in the West, and used him to spy on American officers in Germany. At the time of his arrest, in June last year, he was about to leave for Spain, about which the Russians were anxious, for it was the only European country about which they lacked information concerning bases and airfields.

The publication of the transcript has been curiously timed, for it is a bare month before the arrival of Nikita Khrushchev on his official visit to Sweden. It has already served to jolt public opinion and will doubtless do much to counteract any propaganda speeches made by Khrushchev.

The "Wennerstrom affair" culminates with the verdict and sentence on June 11. Since it appears from the interrogation that he has confessed, and that the evidence supports this, he can scarcely escape a verdict of guilty and the heaviest sentence known to Swedish law: life imprisonment.

This will occur exactly four days before Khrushchev begins his Scandinavian tour in Denmark.

BACKGROUND

Germans Discontented

Is the Time Ripe For New Hitler?

By STERLING G. SLAPPEY, from Bonn

Fear is emerging in Germany that a political leader or rabble rouser will be able to use discontent over the division of Germany to launch a career.

The people remember that Adolf Hitler used discontent over the Versailles Treaty to launch himself 40 years ago. This fear is frightening, not just for the West, but also for the Soviet Union, which actually holds the only power which could permit reunification of East and West Germany.

It is fed by the sense of futility which is spreading over West Germany. The Federal Republic of the West and the German Democratic Republic of the Communist East are not likely to be reunified for many years.

Informed Germans in and out of government say more of their countrymen have come to realize this recently.

In recent months the United States and Soviet Union have been getting along better than at any time since the war. Such things as the new consular treaty, partial test-ban treaty and agreement to curtail production of fissionable materials have lowered temperatures between East and West.

At the same time this quasi-detente is said to have dropped western pressure for the reunification of Germany. Reunification is now thought to be far toward the bottom of the list of world problems.

During the recent North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in The Hague, two events took place which, in the German view, proved that the West does not want to push for reunification soon.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, British Foreign Secretary Richard Butler and French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville put out a special announcement saying in effect that the three powers would not approve a new western initiative in the immediate future toward settlement of reunification and other German problems.

Three days later the communiqué on the ending of the NATO meeting backed the principle of reunification and free elections in the Communist East. But the communiqué did not stress a time element.

Bonn Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder was deeply disappointed.

Schroeder needed more evidence of allied interest in reunification and the German problem to fight off attacks by ousted Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss and others who oppose him.

U.S. and British unwillingness to rock the international boat during election year, and especially at a time when the Soviet Union has eased off a bit, is understood by Schroeder, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other leaders.

But Strauss, fired as a cabinet officer in 1962 for lying to parliament and for high-handed arrests of journalists critical to him, has been attacking Schroeder and trying to add to his already great support among refugees, right-wingers and ex-soldiers. His objective is to become foreign minister after the 1965 German elections.

Hans Christoph Seebohm, minister of transport, caused a furor a week ago when he demanded again in a speech that refugees in Germany be allowed to return to the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia, there to be allowed to establish their own national status.

This smack of a similar Hitler demand of 1938, and cold shivers ran down spines in the Bonn government. Seebohm is 61 and generally not popular. There is little fear that he has ideas of turning himself into anything more than a cabinet minister. But there is fear that someone else with greater ambition might try to use Seebohm and his followers.

Scandinavia pay great attention to events in their neighboring countries. It would seem that the Wennerstrom Affair will serve to blight the Khrushchev visit, not only in Sweden, but in Norway and Denmark as well.

Gap-Closing Drive Starts on Weekend

'Y' Seeks Extra $237,000

A last-ditch effort to keep Victoria's new Y.M.-Y.W.C.A. building out of debt will get under way this weekend when building fund officials will try to close a $237,000 gap in a clean-up campaign.

Rising costs and building taxes have raised the cost of the building to $1,347,000 from an original estimate of $1,110,000. About $1,110,000 of this has already been pledged.

Hugh Stephen, campaign chairman of the drive, said last night he felt the original objective, as closely in sight, would have been reached had it not been for the unforeseen increase in cost.

"Although we are still $237,000 short, construction has been started as an act of faith and in the belief that the continuance of this essential youth work is vital to the welfare of our community," said Mr. Stephen.

Negotiations resumed yesterday on the 15-day-old Albernath office workers' strike, hard on the heels of the first statement during the strike by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River chairman J. V. Cline.

City Delegate

Bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada D. A. G. Rankin of the Church of Our Lord has been chosen to represent Victoria at conference in Ottawa of Canada's religious leaders. Three-day conference begins Sunday and was called by Governor-General Vanier to discuss religion and family life effect on future of Canada.

Chamber Tours Trail Area

Sixty members of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce toured the Trail area yesterday, including the Cominco plant and the site of the planned High Arrow dam.

They were on the chamber's second annual educational air tour. A similar group visited the Peace River dam site last year. The group was headed by Chamber president E. E. Pearman.

Trail area businessmen, including Chamber of Commerce and Rotary Club members, civic government officials and public relations officers of B.C. Hydro and Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company, along with Silver City Fiesta Queen Terry Kuzky, helped show the visitors around.

Final 35 Rivals Seek Places in 4-H Parley

By KLAUS MUENTER

DUNCAN — Eleven inations start next week in southern Vancouver Island for the 35 4-H club members still eligible to go to the 1964 provincial club week in New Denver July 13 to 17.

Duncan district agriculturist Ken Jameson, 4-H supervisor for the southern Island, will choose 11 boys and girls.

They will make up the largest contingent among the 80 4-H members from across B.C. at New Denver. There are 16 club districts across the province.

Of the 35 youngsters still in the running, 27 live in the Saanich area and the other eight in the Cowichan-Cobbie Hill district.

Also going to the club week will be one of two remaining candidates for a $700 Canadian National Exhibition scholarship given annually to a boy planning to study agriculture or a girl interested in home economics.

The two are Wendy Baker, 17, of the Saanich Jersey Club, and Nancy Miller, 18, of the Saanich Home Arts Club.

Last year, this scholarship also went to Saanich. Winner

Fishery Workers Go to Conciliation

A conciliation board began hearings in Vancouver yesterday in contract negotiations involving shoreworkers in Vancouver, Victoria and Prince Rupert.

The hearings are to resume Tuesday in the negotiations between the B.C. Fisheries Association, representing employers, and the independent United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

A conciliation board is to begin hearings Monday on contract negotiations between the union and the association involving tendersmen — men employed on boats packing fish from fish boats to shore.

Negotiations between the same two groups are also under way concerning fishermen. Fishermen are not covered by the B.C. Labor Relations Act.

Hard Winter's Study Pays Off

A winter of hard labor and study in everything from deep sea navigation to marine electronics paid off for members of the Victoria Power Squadron at the annual banquet in the Ingraham Hotel last night.

Cad in blazers bearing the distinctive burgee crest of blue and white vertical stripes with a maple leaf in the centre, members filed forward to receive their awards which included certificates for navigation, junior navigation, advance piloting and seamanship and marine electronics.

Winner of the squadron predicted log race, skipper Eth Minaker was presented with the club trophy. His winning vessel was Winward.

Rear-Admiral W. M. Landy, more presented navigation certificates to D. M. Boyd, J. R. George, E. T. W. Nash, H. M. Brundridge and Arthur Greenwood.

Junior navigation certificates were given by instructor Capt. Peter Thomas to Mrs. Viola Cairns, Mrs. Grace Foulkes, Michael Fraser, Mrs. Jessie Lodge, Alec James and Mrs. Lillian Rivers.

Advance piloting and seamanship certificates were awarded to Reece Adamson, G. D. Browning, Harry Crosby, A. I. Dallain, Joe Dill, V. W. Griffin, J. S. Houston, Rex Kember, Eth Minaker, W. S. Plater, Alec Rawlings, George Reid, Alec James, Howard Schmitt and Mrs. K. D. Storrie.

'Admiral' Donnie Going on Cruise

Nanaimo and West Vancouver will share the spotlight Friday when Premier Bennett accepts delivery of the newest B.C. ferry to enter service.

Mayor Pete Maffeo and other civic dignitaries from Nanaimo will be among the approximately 800 invited guests when the Queen of Nanaimo sails from the Inner Harbor at 11 a.m.

Also aboard for a long-awaited voyage will be seven-year-old Donnie Hall, of West Vancouver, who wants to be an admiral first and a Cub Scout second.

Donnie was invited to attend when Premier Bennett learned of his interest in all things nautical—and B.C. ferries in particular. He will be accompanied by his mother, Mrs. Peter J. Hall, and younger brother Robin, 6.

The premier's invitation came about following the announcement last year that the old wooden-hulled steamship Smokwa would be retired July 15 from the Howe Sound run.

Donnie heard the news and laboriously printed this letter to Victoria:

"Mr. Primeminister: Please keep the Smokwa afloat: It's my favorite and best B.C. ferry. Signed: Donnie Peter Hall."

The association is already involved in fund-raising and has collected $3,000 of a $5,000 target.

The funds will be used for bursaries, the university library, student exchanges, and for a president's fund from which he may allot funds for projects he deems worthy.

President of Victoria local 201 of the International Typographical Union, T. E. D. Ferris, has been re-elected to office, along with vice-president Roy Fawcus, at the annual election of officers.

Other officers are: William Richardson, secretary - treasurer; R. E. Buckley, W. R. Pearce, W. C. Irwin and S. A. Moore, executive committee; Art Cottrell and J. D. Davidson, delegates to the international convention; W. G. Noones and Nick Robertson, delegates to the B.C. Typographical conference, and J. D. Chapman, H. R. Hallett and F. R. Moore, delegates to Victoria Labor Council.

L. J. Wallace Off to Regina

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace, chairman of the provincial Centennial 1967 Committee, leaves for Regina today to take part in a panel discussion at the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities meeting in Regina. Subject will be the Canadian Centenary.

Rap Martial Law

Student Uprisings Spread in Korea

SEOUL (AP). — Students demonstrated in at least three other South Korean cities today against President Chung Hee Park's order imposing martial law in the capital.

On Wednesday 20,000 Koreans rioted on the streets of Seoul and 600 police and anti-government demonstrators were injured in the bloody battle that followed.

In a statement, Park said the demonstrations "amounted to subversive anti-government activities" and an open challenge to a constitutionally elected government. He promised to lift martial law "as soon as peace and order are restored."

FLACARDS

Today about 1,000 high school students, carrying placards reading "lift the martial law" and "solve the economic problem" clashed with police in Incheon, 30 miles west of Seoul.

More than 1,000 college students in Pusan, South Korea's second largest city, demanded that Park resign.

About 2,000 students from two universities in Kwangju, 165 miles south of Seoul, battled police who replied with tear gas shells.

EDICT ENFORCED

A government spokesman said after an emergency cabinet session that martial law would be extended to the provinces if rioting continues.

Troops enforced the edict in Seoul.

Martial law was proclaimed in this city of 3,000,000 people Wednesday as rocks drove army troops into the capital compound not far from Blue House, residence of President Chung Hee Park.

CURFEW

All gatherings and demonstrations are banned. All schools are closed indefinitely. Curfew was imposed from 9 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Oldsters Asked To Rehearsal

Members of the Silver Threads Service and all old age pensioner organizations have been invited to attend the dress rehearsal of the Langham Court Theatre production of Under the Yum Yum Tree tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Tokyo Wears Out Its Floor Traders

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

The most wearing job in the world? It must be that of a floor trader on the Tokyo Stock Exchange.

There are 3,000 of these fellows, and they are all 25 years or under. After that they have to be moved to easier, and less noisy, jobs in the Japanese securities industry.

The Tokyo exchange handles between 200,000,000 and 300,000,000 shares on a moderately busy day. Its record volume is 480,000,000 shares.

This was the picture of the Tokyo market brought back to British Columbia by John A. Van Laven, executive vice-president of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, who was one of a party of 22 Vancouver investment people who have recently been visiting the Tokyo exchange.

QUEER DAY
Mr. Van Laven said when the Vancouver people were in the exchange it was a quiet day. Only 150,000,000 shares were traded "but even so it was a fabulous sight," he said.

Most of the securities traded on the Tokyo exchange are low priced. Some of the best of the "blue chips" can be bought for a dollar or less and as a result nearly everyone in Japan is a shareholder in one company or another.

The per capita number of shareholders in Japan is three times higher than it is in Canada, according to the Vancouver Stock Exchange executive.

CANADIAN MONEY
One of the things the Vancouver people learned during their visit was that Japan would like to see more Canadian money invested in Japanese industry.

They were told the recent U.S. 15 per cent tax on foreign investment had seriously depleted the amount of U.S. capital coming to Japan and Canadians were invited to fill the gap.

The Japanese would like Canadians to invest in their manufacturing industries, and they were told this was one way in which Canada could help to right the balance of trade which weighs heavily in Canada's favor in its dealings with Japan.

GOOD YIELD
"There is considerable attraction in many Japanese stock issues," said Mr. Van Laven. "Even the safest of them give a yield of between 8 and 11 per cent."

However, Mr. Van Laven said that while Japan needed more capital for its domestic industries it was also anxious to put money into Canada's natural resources.

"Japan is extremely short of raw materials, and the export of capital for investment in this type of business gets high priority with the Japanese government," said Mr. Van Laven.

Bill Dunnet, Imperial Oil's senior sales representative on Vancouver Island, has just completed 30 years of uninterrupted service with the company. He joined Imperial as a burner mechanic in Vancouver in 1934.

TO WIDEN EQUITY
Laurentide Financial Corporation is asking its shareholders to approve the sale of an additional 200,000 of the company's $1.00 series $25 par cumulative redeemed stock.

The date and price of the issue has not yet been decided, but Laurentide says the purpose is to widen the company's equity base for future debt issues.

ADVANCE REDEMPTION
Great Plains Development Company of Canada is redeeming on June 30 all its outstanding $4,630,000 notes due to mature April 1, 1963. The original amount of the notes issued in 1950 was $10,000,000. The remainder have already been redeemed.

NAME CHANGED
Vendomatic Services Ltd. has changed its name to Versaford Services Ltd., which it is claimed will better point up the diversified nature of the company's operations.

OPEN END ISSUE
An open end $10,000,000 debenture issue in two maturities is being marketed by Credit Foncier-Franco Canadian. The choice is between 5 1/2 per cent non-callable debentures maturing July 2, 1969, at 99 1/2 to yield 5.62 per cent, and 5 1/2 per cent debentures, non-callable before 1978, maturing July 2, 1984, at 99 to yield 5.82 per cent.

Builders Delay—Carpenters

A carpenters' union official last night accused the Victoria Building Industries Exchange of causing "another unnecessary delay" in contract negotiations between the two groups.

E. T. Staley of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners said last night that a conciliation board in the dispute began hearings Tuesday and the union presented its case.

NOT PREPARED
Then, Mr. Staley said, the exchange said it had not prepared its case yet and the hearings were adjourned until next Tuesday.

Mr. Staley said the exchange had had plenty of time to prepare its case and the adjournment was "totally unnecessary."

The conciliation board consists of chairman Prof. Noel Hall of the University of B.C., employers' nominee Dr. Larry Jack of Vancouver and employees' nominee William Gaud of Victoria.

The union, in its Victoria negotiations, is seeking parity with Vancouver carpenters who are themselves currently involved in a contract dispute.

The amount the Vancouver carpenters are seeking, plus the disparity between Victoria and Vancouver demands, adds up to a total 60-cent-an-hour wage increase requested by the Victoria carpenters.

FRINGE BENEFITS
The Victoria exchange has called this demand, along with fringe benefit demands by the carpenters, unrealistic.

Mainland carpenters recently voted overwhelmingly to authorize strike action in their dispute with firms represented by the Vancouver Builder's Exchange and the Heavy Construction Association of B.C.

But negotiations in Vancouver resumed yesterday.

Union officials are to meet in Nanaimo Saturday to discuss the contract situation through-out B.C.

Meanwhile, negotiations between two other unions and the Victoria exchange have reached the conciliation officer stage.

Officials of the exchange and the Victoria and General Laborers' Union Local 1093 will meet Friday with B.C. conciliation officer William McLaughlin.

President

Recently appointed President of the B.C. Aviation Council is Peter J. G. Power. He succeeds J. N. Donnelly of Air-Canada, who has been transferred to eastern Canada.

Killers at Large

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRMS

Methods for controlling weeds in the front lawn have changed a lot since I was a boy. I think about the first money I ever earned was for digging dandelions and plantains out of the lawn with a broken kitchen knife—my mother paid me a penny per weed, and I could have become affluent but for a penalty clause in the contract. I was fined ten cents for every weed my mother could find after I had reported the job completed. This made for thoroughness, together with a sore back and very dirty knees.

Today we just slather a hormone chemical weedkiller over the lawn, whereupon the weeds die without injury to the grasses. It is so easy, in fact, that we are becoming careless in the handling of a very dangerous chemical; dangerous, that is, to all broad-leaved plants, whether they are weeds or valued occupants of our gardens.

For instance, a lot of folks insist upon applying 2,4-D weedkiller to the lawn with a pump-up pneumatic sprayer, and for my money, this is about the surest way to lose friends and infuriate neighbors, for the stuff comes out in the form of a fine mist which will drift out of bounds even in a light breeze, killing expensive plants and shrubs in the gardens downwind from you.

This is getting to be a very common occurrence, and my mail is loaded every summer with reports of mysterious blights which have twisted and distorted the leaves of precious plants, shrubs, vines and small trees. In almost all such cases, the trouble can be traced to 2,4-D fumes drifting in from a careless weedkilling job somewhere in the neighborhood.

Some plants are particularly susceptible to this kind of damage. Tomato plants, for instance, will curl and distort their leaves at the slightest trace of weedkiller fumes in the air. Grape vines and their ornamental cousin, Virginia Creeper, are both highly vulnerable, and I lost a treasured lilac and a viburnum all because a luncheon in our neighborhood decided to spray his lawn on a windy day.

It isn't any great trick to apply weedkiller solution to the grass safely. Rather than a fine, misty spray, I favor wetting the weed leaves with coarse droplets such as you would get from a watering can. Not that I recommend using your regular watering can, for 2,4-D renders it unsafe to use for ordinary waterings until it has been decontaminated by scrubbing it out with a hot washing soda solution until no trace of the weedkiller smell can be detected.

This is more trouble than the job is worth, and I think it is better to substitute one of those inexpensive plastic nozzles that fit on the neck of a one-gallon vinegar jug. If you don't have an old vinegar jug, your garden shop will sell you its modern equivalent—a bright yellow plastic jug made especially for weedkilling jobs. As long as this equipment is not used for any other purpose, there is no need to decontaminate.

I can't say I am very keen on hose-nozzle sprayers for weedkilling solutions either, for here too, the chemical is delivered as a fine mist. Moreover, these applicators are held too high for safety; whatever gadget is used should deliver the 2,4-D close to the ground, to minimize the possibility of drift.

In my next column I will discuss and evaluate other methods of applying weedkillers.

JOHN CROSBY Gets an Education

Oxford Defeats Democracy

OXFORD, England—I know a group of young Oxford graduates in London all extraordinarily good-looking, witty, charming. And without exception unemployed.

Oxford equips you splendidly to be prime minister (Macmillan went there; so did Sir Alec), or to be the son of a duke. But then there aren't so many of these there?

At least that's what I thought until I got here. Now I'm not so sure. Oxford teems with incredibly handsome young men, all of whom look exactly like Macmillan when he was here. (Just saw a picture of him as an undergraduate. Very good-looking and already with that arrogance of office.)

They're all, I'm convinced, destined for either 10 Downing Street or unemployment—there's nothing in between.

Just before or after you meet anyone at Oxford, some one whispers in your ear, "Son of the Duke of Hamilton, y'know," or "Beaverbrook's great-nephew, y'know." Genealogy is very important here.

I met both these young men, Lord James Douglas-Hamilton, son of the Duke of Hamilton who is president of the Oxford Union, and Beaverbrook's great-nephew, Jonathan Aitken, and both of them have the bearing and brains of future prime ministers.

Oxford, in fact the whole English educational system until recently, has been operated under the proposition that it must locate and educate a few brilliant young men properly and they will govern the peasantry.

Labor strongly disputes this, insisting that the peasantry ought to be educated, too, even supply some prime ministers.

In fact, a good many peasants are now in Oxford. Theoretically this should democratize the place. It hasn't.

Instead, in a few months time, the peasants acquire clothes, a new accent. After a year at Oxford the bone structure of their faces is subtly modified. Their noses grow longer and they go home for Christmas holidays and are mortally ashamed of their mothers.

Democracy is fighting a losing battle here.

The first night at Oxford I went to a debate at the Oxford Union. "You'll never understand the special quality of Oxford until you see a Union debate." Well, now I've seen a Union debate and I don't think I'll ever understand Oxford.

The hall was jammed with eager young men and lovely girls, their eyes alight with anticipation. Outside the hall, a young man said to me, "Should be a good evening's entertainment," and scurried in.

I had never thought of debating as entertainment exactly. But then I'd never been to an Oxford Union debate. Jokes flew. The audience rocked with laughter. Great audience.

At one point a young man named John MacDonnell, who has flaming red hair and looks like the great god Pan (former president of the Union and a great debater) leapt to his feet and blew a great sheet of flame 10 feet into the air.

"Do it again," commanded the speaker. He did it again.

The audience rocked.

"Fiercest speech of the night," said the speaker.

"And the shortest," said MacDonnell.

One debater made his farewell speech. Sniffed the text speaker, "It seems a pity he has to say farewell before he learned how to say hello properly."

Insults, in fact, are not only in order but a debater would be considered a wfully mealy-mouthed if he didn't insult someone, deftly, casually, crushingly. Not all in fun, either. The feuds in the Union are deadly.

I wish I could tell you some of the jokes. Frankly, I couldn't understand a single one, though the audience was convulsed. But they are not only inside jokes. They are uttered in an inside language.

Oxonians who are perfectly comprehensible in London become totally incomprehensible at least to non-Oxonians the minute they go back. The vowels disappear down the throat, garbling whole sentences. Another Oxonian howls with appreciation and understanding.

The evening and the debate ended with Noel Picarda, a snarling, black-haired young man, who had been a great debater in his undergraduate days (and is now, of course, unemployed) doing his famous pantomime with appropriate sound effects of an Italian bus driver taking his vehicle up a mountain. Then he did motorboat noises with a glass of water. Then he did Hitler. Wild applause.

The next morning I attended a breakfast party in the room of MacDonnell, the flamethrower. A lot of young men in canvas pants and sweaters and pretty girls in skirts sat on the floor and drank bouillon laced with vodka. Hell of a drink.

A young man with a great armful of books sat next to me and remarked brightly, "You know, it's the 429th anniversary of the fall of Constantinople?"

"What brought that to mind?" I asked, slightly astounded.

"I just suddenly realized what day it was," said the young man. Straightaway, he dove into one of his books. The Diplomatic History of Greece between 1823 and 1828, in French.

A man came in wearing pyjamas. "It's a breakfast," said the host, "not an orgy." And blew flames at him. The pyjama'd one disappeared, properly abashed.

In the corner, a bull of an undergraduate (chap from the Midlands, the new peasantry) was stroking the hair of a young girl who is a member of one of Oxford's women's colleges, St. Anne.

"Meet me at the Union at noon for a drink," he was saying. "No, I've got a class from noon to one," she murmured. "Some other time?"

I don't know how they ever get to class at Oxford. As a matter of fact, they hardly ever do. Oxford has a unique tutorial system and you can go through three years and never attend a single class.

Who's to Play Jean Harlow?

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Who will play Jean Harlow, now that Marilyn Monroe is dead? Marilyn had been waiting for a good script on the life of the late platinum blonde, she told me shortly before that overdose of sleeping pills. On June 13, Bernard Gels will publish Harlow, Irving Shaw's biography of Jean. And advance reports say the book is good. Maybe Kim Novak can play the part. She has the softness, the bloneness and the determination.

All of a sudden the stars who create the role on Broadway are getting the part in the movie—like Barbara Streisand for Funny Girl, Carol Channing for Hello, Dolly, and Sandy Dennis for Any Wednesday. And how about Bette Midler and Tammy Grimes for High Spirits?

It seems that Mae West wanted too many changes in her role in Ross Hunter's Art of Love, and perhaps Marlon Brando, all recovered from the mumps, is ready to help publicize his film comedy, Bedtime Story... and Brock Hudson, now doing Strange Bedfellows, will follow with The Favor with Leslie Caron.

Men about town are wondering why Frank Sinatra is dating unknown girls who are far from beautiful. Perhaps because Frankie has grown up and looks deeper than merely skin deep.

Steve McQueen is one of the few actors who has it in his contracts that he has director and cast approval on all his pictures. That's how important he is. He is turning them down in both categories by the bushel. I hope this won't keep him out of too many good pictures.

Mary Hedy told me that after she turned down the role of Bing Crosby's wife in his new TV series, she suffered a few pangs. She had always wanted to work with Bing. "But my life in the east with Peter (Land Hayes) and our children is too good. Neither of us particularly wants to live in Hollywood." They really do have the ideal life. With the early-morning radio show from their comfortable home in New Rochelle, and golf right on their front step. They are both so easy-going and nice.

Hollywood is a place where people forget. A glimpse through the open door of the prop room at Paramount. The usual congestion and clutter. In the middle of it all, one of those canvas-back folding chairs used by the stars on the sets. Gathering dust on the name of the star—Alan Ladd.

Everyone is wondering how old-time star Connie Bennett, who is certainly not a teen-ager, manages to look a perpetual 25 years old. She was a big star when I first went to Hollywood and that was a long time ago. There is not a line on her face.

Odds and Ends

By STANTON DELAPLANE

Now that May is gone, regard the life of the mayfly. The mayfly has no mouth, no stomach.

It lives one day and spends the whole day dancing and mating. That's the life, mates.

The tarnished plant bug travels. For no apparent reason except—as you and I—to see the sights.

The tarnished plant bug has been captured in Delaware Bay, 12 miles from the nearest land. The bug's purpose in life is to damage lima beans.

Things get dull, there's a bit of dinner party conversation.

"Did you know that the tarnished plant bug etc., etc."

It would have to be a very dull dinner party. But it's an ice-breaker.

A tame crow in Cape Town, South Africa, has learned how to pull the valve on auto tires.

He is now learning to deflate bicycle tires. The crow's owners are very unpopular. There's a problem you probably don't have. Something to be thankful for.

Saving cats is the hobby of Matthew McBride of Liverpool, England. In three years, Mc-Bride rescued more than 500 cats—from wells, from trees, from telegraph poles. All kinds of places only a cat would think of getting into.

Mr. McBride was awarded a medal for "Devotion, Courage, Kindness and Action."

When I was making public opinion for the dailies, I was often sent out to see cats rescued.

Once I worked for an editor who was convinced that cats could talk. I tried to humor him in this. I went out to interview a cat who went to sleep on a pillow and was trapped when the tide came in.

I reported that the cat said: "I'm poor old Ben Gunn. And I'm moonstruck, I am."

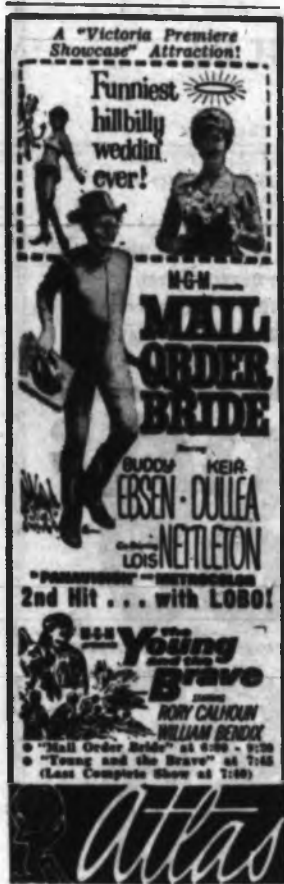

I did not get a medal for Devotion, Courage, Kindness and Action. I did not even get a raise.

You will be glad to know—if (if you are having fish dinner)—that lobsters have been clocked. By lobster handicappers, I suppose.

A lobster can crawl at a rate of 25 feet a minute.

That's six miles a day. In case you are doing some on-track betting.

New Drive Planned By Visitors' Bureau

The Victoria Visitors Bureau's annual drive for funds and members is scheduled to start in about 10 days, bureau membership committee chairman Nicholas North said last night.

Mr. North said the bureau needs a great many more members and a great deal more money and the list of firms to be solicited has been increased by about 150 from last year — approximately doubled.

PROFESSIONALS

He said that for the first time the bureau plans to try to sell memberships to professional people such as doctors, lawyers, dentists and chartered accountants.

As in previous years, the membership campaign will be carried on by means of a large mailing of letters plus personal calls by canvassers on a smaller number of firms.

WIDER CANVASS

But the number of firms to be canvassed personally has been considerably increased.

This British film, directed by Peter Brook and adapted from William Golding's novel, tells the story of a group of school boys stranded on an uninhabited island.

Their plane crashed while they were being evacuated in the face of the threat of nuclear war.

It appears their plight isn't too serious. No one was hurt (though for obvious plot reasons the plane's crew and other adults perished) and there are ample supplies of food.

Singer-Evangelist Here for Weekend

Author, recording artist, composer, radio and TV star Redd Harper will be in Victoria on Friday.

Mr. Harper, the cowboy singer-evangelist, will hold a Rodeo Round-Up for boys and girls on Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the intersection of Henderson and Arden Streets.

Russians Open Long Canal

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has completed a 224-mile canal from the Baltic Sea to the Volga River. Tass said it will take more than 15,000,000 tons of cargo a year from overburdened railways. The Soviet news agency said ships of more than 5,000 tons could use the 12-foot-deep waterway.

Ships Collide Off Chesapeake

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—The U.S. aircraft carrier Lake Champlain and the Norwegian motor vessel Skauvaag collided in dense fog in Chesapeake Bay.

Atlantic fleet headquarters said no injuries were reported on either ship.

Yum-Yum Tree

Parallels Provided

Some odd parallels occur when the Theatre Guild opens Under the Yum-Yum Tree (Lawrence Roman) at the Langham Court Theatre on Saturday.

The director is Cliff Clarke who also directed Critic's Choice (Ira Levin) in January of last year. But both Critic's Choice and Under the Yum-Yum Tree saw the light of Broadway within a month of each other in 1960 and there was only a couple of weeks difference in the length of their runs. Both have small casts and single sets. Neither won critical acclaim at birth—rather the opposite.

SURPRISES

Of course these things, or indeed the sum and implication of them, may not mean a thing in Victoria. What flops on Broadway doesn't necessarily do so everywhere else. In fact more pleasant surprises come to those who expect little or the worst than to those who expect too much or the best.

Stella Smith produces the show for the Guild and the cast includes several well-known theatrical figures in Victoria.

GUILD DEBUT

Marge Bridgman, a singer of repute as well as an actress, is always competent and fluent. Ricky Darwell makes his debut with the Guild though he has appeared with other groups. Robert Lutes, on the other hand, has been a frequent performer in Guild productions over the past two years: The Seven Year Itch, Romanoff and Juliet, Inherit the Wind, etc.

There has to be a first time for anybody in anything, and her appearance as Robin Austin in the Yum-Yum Tree marks the major theatrical debut of Miss Sandy Evans.

One way and another there's a lot of interest about this play.

With curtain time 8:15 every evening, it runs June 5 to 13, with a sponsored preview Friday evening.

Bonded Stock is in the best shape ever.

Our whisky doesn't come in those old bottles anymore. These fine old bottles have launched their last sip. We've designed these new containers for Bonded Stock. Plus matching new labels. And we age Bonded Stock longer now as well. This makes every drop just a little more mellow. One thing though, Bonded Stock's smooth lightness we don't change. Our blenders know a good thing when they taste it. Judging from the number of people who buy Bonded Stock, so does the rest of the country.

Murder Label Fixed On Airliner Crash

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday pinned a definite label of mid-air murder on the May 7 crash of a Pacific Airlines plane by releasing an electronic translation of a dying pilot's last words.

The words were spoken by co-pilot Raymond Andress just before the Reno-San Francisco F77 with 44 victims aboard plunged to earth 30 miles east of San Francisco. They were:

"SKIPPER'S AMOT"
"Skipper's shot. We're bin (or 'been') shot. I was (these two words uncertain) tryin' ta (apparently 'to') help."

The flight's last communication to the Oakland control tower was deciphered by the Bell Telephone Laboratory in Murray Hill, N.J. Bell technicians used a device known as the spectrograph, literally a visual recording of the human voice with electronic filters eliminating all other noises and tracing each word, syllable by syllable.

The determination of which pilot spoke the final message was made by comparing previous recordings of Andress' voice and that of Capt. Ernest Clark with the tape from the fatal flight.

Merger Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice department has opposed the proposed merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania Railroads as tending to give the two lines "a dominance approaching monopoly" in the areas they serve.

The two railways operate almost 20,000 miles of line between New York City and St. Louis, Mo., including parts of Canada.

"This determination seems relatively certain," Bell audio expert L. G. Kersta advised the CAB.

GUN'S OWNER
The FBI is still investigating the background and conduct of Frank Gonzalez, former Philippines Olympic athlete, who was one of the 41 passengers killed in the crash.

Gonzalez, carrying between $45,000 and $105,000 in life insurance, was identified as the owner of a high-powered magnum revolver found in the wreckage. Tests showed the gun had been fired recently.

Paint-Up Comes First

Bright sunshine brought out many boating enthusiasts this week, but not for the same purpose as John Canson, 2807 Dunlevy, who decided to pass up the sea to put a coat of paint on his 18-foot fishing boat Caddy. He is shown working at his mooring at the Oak Bay Marina. (Bud Kinsman)

Canadian Council Says:

Indians Need Help—Just Like Africans

WINNIPEG (CP)—A spokesman for the National Indian Council of Canada said Wednesday economic problems of Indians in many parts of Canada are as serious as those facing emerging African nations.

Wilfred Pelletier of Toronto, the council's executive director, suggested the federal government establish a national Indian development board to seek solutions to these problems.

100 DELEGATES

He addressed about 100 delegates to a national council conference, called to discuss economic problems of Indians in many parts of Canada.

At one point he dealt with an Indian flag, and a red, yellow and black emblem was unfurled. Without official status, it incorporates a thunderbird symbol of the North American Indian, in a maple leaf on a red background.

The delegates, from as far east as New Brunswick and west as British Columbia, gave the flag a round of applause.

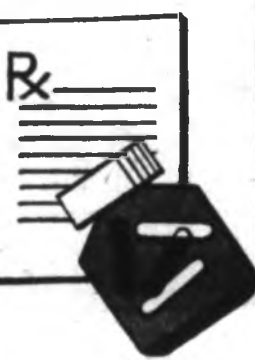

Mr. Pelletier devoted most of his speech to economic matters. He said that solutions to the economic problems of Indians in Canada "demand in my estimate that ... an independent board—a board set up by the Parliament of Canada, but separate from any department of government, be set up as soon as possible."

MORE IMPORTANT

"The board I envisage would be composed not only of social scientists, engineers, etc., but more important, would have a strong representation of Indians."

Mr. Pelletier said he believes that Canadians and both federal and provincial governments are willing and anxious to help Indians become economically independent.

Warm work for a summer occupation is that of first year arts student Ronald Philipchuk, of 1225 Hillside, who is a grill cook in a city cafe.

It's a Big Arena in Fight for Job

By TED GASKELL

Scores of University of Victoria students are busy at summer jobs, making money to help pay their education expenses for next term.

Many are working in the tourist industry, some as hotel chambermaids; others as singing waitresses; one student will don the scarlet tunic of a Beefeater to act as doorman at a city restaurant; a number of girls will guide visitors around the undersea gardens; a professor might be surprised to see one of his students preparing his steak at a downtown grill.

Other students, after a winter of bending over books, will be getting their fill of the outdoors as they work in logging camps, on fishboats or at timber cruising or surveying.

Teachers-to-be will be getting a taste of their future working with children in playgrounds and recreation. Some students are in effect continuing their studies by working as research assistants at the university.

In Victoria, the National Employment Service has placed 470 students in jobs, but there are still 650 to be placed. Others have found their own jobs.

Most students need the summer jobs badly. Tuition fees and books will cost about $500.

Most students, even those leading the most Spartan of university existences, find they need as much again for entertainment and other university living expenses.

No Board

That's $1,000 without board and room.

A student living away from home can expect to find another $75 a month — $600 in all — for eating and sleeping. Charles Lavertu, third year education student, working for the summer as a reporter with The Daily Colonist, thinks a student should be prepared to find at least $1,500 before he thinks of going to university.

Summer jobs rarely pay half this.

Students are lucky to earn $60 or $70 a week and even those with jobs which last four months—and many only last three—could only expect to make a little over $1,000.

Students looking for summer work are battling in a big arena.

From UBC

Before the university year ends there are 15,000 students from UBC, 2,000 from the University of Victoria and 800 from Notre Dame University at Nelson, plus 15,000 Grade 12 students from high school who are preparing to invade the labor market.

Most of them have to start looking in January, and students feel that if they haven't got a job lined up by March things aren't too hopeful.

Last year Mr. Lavertu had a job lined up in Victoria as a meatcutter, but it did not materialize and he had to go as far as Edmonton to get a job as a waiter at $40 a week.

It's Different

But for the graduates, it's a different story.

Companies, in many cases, come to the graduates and ask them to work in order to prevent a flow of graduates to the U.S.

In some cases undergraduates go back to the same firm year after year and don't have the worry of wondering whether they'll be able to earn money for university expenses.

Major employers of students are the provincial and federal governments; a number of girls have gone to Banff and many of the men are working out of town in logging camps, sawmills and fishing, surveying and timber cruising.

Many stay in Victoria, where they find a great variety of jobs.

First Year

Karen Lovegren, first year education student of 312 Chester, is working as a playground worker for the city of Victoria.

Teresa Chow, of 630 Frances, first year arts, is a diet kitchen worker at Royal Jubilee Hospital. Joe Thompson, third year arts, of 682 Alpha, is one of a number of students working in the customs office.

Working as a chemical research assistant at Royal Roads is Louis DelMacedo.

fourth year arts student of 608 Transit.

One of three chambermaids at the Empress Hotel is Janet White, second year education, of 1655 Howroyd.

Cartographer

Fourth year arts student, Dana Thompson of 2547 Nottingham, is working as a cartographer's assistant for the Canadian Hydrographic Service.

John Harrison, second year education, of 2530 Blackwood, is working as a laundryman and Gerald Freeman, first year arts, of 1073 Davis, will be seen dressed as a Beefeater as doorman at the King Arthur's Roundtable, where a number of girls are working as waitresses.

Ian Martin, first year arts, of 2080 Byron, is a sawmill laborer at Sooke.

Edgelow Proposal:

Wider Smoke Fight

A new citizens committee on air pollution with broader representation from the community at large was proposed yesterday by acting mayor Geoffrey Edgelow.

He made the suggestion in the wake of the angry resignation of one member of the present smoke advisory committee and an unofficial report that Mayfair merchants are petitioning city council for relief from the smoke and flyash nuisance.

Harold Gregson, 474 Burnside, a charter member of the advisory body, said his resignation was prompted by city council's decision last week to take no action against waste beehive burners at two city mills.

He wrote: "During the past few years, I have spent considerable personal time and money in this cause, for what? More double talk? More time and procrastination? Enough is enough."

'WE'RE HUMAN'

"Had we been Uplands people, something would have been done long before now. We, too, are human and entitled to consideration and to enjoy reasonably clean air and comfort."

Council decided last Thursday to ask B.C. Forest Products, Point Ellice division, and Smith Cedar Products to indicate when they will be in a position to dismantle the offending waste burners.

The two beehive burners have been pinpointed by the smoke committee as the greatest contributors to smoke and flyash problems in the Gorge-Burnside-Douglas area.

MILLS HAVE BALL

"This is a council decision," the acting mayor said. "If the mills say they can't give a date for the changeover to another form of waste disposal then I think the next move will be up to the city. But at the moment the ball is still in the hands of the mills."

Ald. Edgelow said the larger problem at the moment can be laid on the doorstep of the two mills in question.

"These are responsible for the majority of smoke and flyash," he said. "But it should be remembered that every trash burner and home incinerator, every car on the road, contributes to the problem in a smaller way."

"Air pollution is a problem that affects all citizens. The sooner we realize this fact, the better, so that we can get the co-operation of everyone in beating the problem."

Ald. Edgelow said he would like to see the present air pollution advisory board enlarged to include broad community representation along the lines of Vancouver's citizens committee set up to deal with the problem.

Bi & Bi Hearings Open Here Friday

Andre Laurendeau, co-chairman of the Royal Commission on bilingualism and biculturalism, arrives in Victoria today with half of the 10-member commission.

They will conduct a three-day meeting of inquiry to hear Victoria and Island views on the matter of bilingualism and biculturalism and to exchange ideas and information.

PART OF SERIES

The meetings, at the Empress Hotel, begin with a press conference at 5 p.m. today and are part of a whole series of meetings being staged across Canada by the commission.

Interested groups and individuals will be allowed to present briefs and material and guides will be distributed by the commission.

URGENT PROBLEM Mr. Laurendeau has said: "It appears to us to be absolutely necessary that the problem become one of urgency to Canadians in all provinces, in all social settings and of all ages, and consequently very necessary that they discuss it among themselves."

"With a dialogue taking place everywhere in Canada, the inquiry will take on its true dimensions and its conclusions will be drawn from the country itself."

Main business of the session in Victoria will be Friday and Saturday.

The Silver Threads volunteer corps has contributed a total of $1,300 toward the Senior Citizens Centre building fund. Of this, $1,000 was the proceeds of a tea and $300 from a home-cooking sale and tea.

Canadian Artists

Polyart Panels, 1,000 Prints On View for Three Days

Fifty original paintings, a dozen polyart panels and 1,000 prints, are on view in the Douglas Room, Hudson's Bay Company today, tomorrow and Saturday. They are all done by Canadian Westcoast artists.

Fine Art Enterprises of Vancouver presents his show which is a repeat of their highly successful show at the B.C. Trade Fair in Vancouver.

A special feature is the introduction of the new Canadian artist series, comprising reproductions of the works of B.C. painters.

Victoria-born Robert Genn, was one of the first artists to have his work translated into prints, and he will be on hand to autograph prints of the paintings.

Mrs. Rosemary Holmes Smith of Fine Art Enterprises states 10 B.C. artists have been chosen for the first series of prints.

She states a company in Vancouver has a new electronic machine for reproduction of paintings, and this is the first time in the West that artists are able to have their work reproduced at a nominal cost. Prints are from $1 to $5 and are mounted on hardboard. Color is true, and the surface is washable so no glass is needed in framing.

Referring to the polyart panels, she states they are done by the inventor of the system, E. H. Pol. A lot at the Trade Fair, they are done in fibreglass resin with strong colors and in various designs.

There will also be an interesting collection of original paintings by Norman Denkinson, Don Curley, Joy Caros and John Bell as well as Robert Genn.

Mr. John Bell has done a series called "Jewels of the Pacific" which is just off the new press and not shown before.

According to Mrs. Holmes-Smith, Robert Genn is having a success. Six of his paintings were recently sold to the Vincent Price collection and from his last Vancouver show, 18 paintings were sold and six new ones commissioned.

Prints and paintings are priced from $1 to $400.

Left-Over Salmon Has Many Uses

A recent promotion on British Columbia salmon undertaken by the B.C. Dept. on Fisheries highlights the fact that good salmon is now available on a year round basis—fresh in season, of course, and frozen at other times. This is so true and very good it is, too. However, the season for fresh salmon, be it Pacific, Atlantic or Gaspe is almost upon us, and no doubt everybody has their favorite way to prepare and serve it. One problem that affects most people is how to use the left overs, and certainly a good recipe is needed to make full use of these goodies—when all is said and done the price factor should be taken into consideration—fresh salmon is never exactly cheap. Here are two good recipes that are well worth the trouble.

SALMON MOUSSE

One envelope of unflavored gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, ½ cup boiling water, ½ cup mayonnaise, 1 tsp. lemon juice, 1 tbsp. grated onion, ¼ tsp.

tobacco sauce, ¼ tsp. paprika, 1 tsp. salt, 2 cups salmon, flaked and finely chopped, 1 tsp. capers - chopped, ½ cup heavy cream, 3 cups cottage cheese.

Soften the gelatin in the cold water—add the hot water and stir until dissolved. Cool.

Add the mayonnaise, lemon juice, onion, tobacco, paprika and salt and mix well.

Chill until thickening. Add the salmon and capers and beat well. Whip the cream and fold into the mixture, turn into a mold—well oiled. Add the cheese to fill the mold. Chill until set.

The second recipe is not as elaborate, but most tasty nevertheless.

BAKED SALMON LOAF

(Preheat oven to 375°)

Two cups cooked salmon, ½ cup evaporated milk, 2 cups soft bread crumbs, 1 egg—well beaten, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 tablespoons minced onion, ½ teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning.

Put the salmon into a mixing bowl, add the milk and the bread crumbs and mix well with a fork until well blended. Add the egg and remaining ingredients and mix well.

Turn the mixture into a well greased loaf pan and bake for 40 minutes or until the centre is firm.

This salmon loaf is delicious when served with a sauce made by heating one cup of white sauce with one quarter cup each of mayonnaise, chopped almonds and chopped olives. Bon appetit!

HAMILTON (CP) — The new president of the National Council of Women of Canada is Mrs. H. H. Steen of Vancouver, who will succeed Mrs. Saul Hayes of Montreal for a three-year term.

A resolution asking that a royal commission be established on abortion laws in Canada was passed by the 125 national delegates. It asked that the proposed commission "recommend clarification and amendment to bring these laws into conformity with the realities of Canadian life."

A stronger resolution requesting expedition of the amendment of laws without a commission, proposed as an amendment by Mrs. R. J. Ferris on behalf of the Vancouver local Council of Women, was defeated.

The council also empowered its executive to ask the federal government for more measures for the rehabilitation of women prisoners. The resolution asks:

for group therapy, general education, vocational training and pay for work to help a prisoner become rehabilitated when she is released.

Other officers elected included: Vice-presidents—Mrs. S. M. Milne, Winnipeg, Mrs. R. T. Gilmore, New Westminster, B.C., and Mrs. John Oliver, Edmonton.

Mrs. W. A. Wood of Brandon, Man., is recording secretary.

National committee chairmen include: Elizabeth Long, Winnipeg, art and letters; Mrs. D. M. Robertson, Winnipeg, education; Mrs. C. W. Mellish, Vancouver, health; Mrs. A. D. Beimes, West Vancouver, laws; Mrs. J. Odgen Turner, Winnipeg, public safety; Mrs. D. F. Griffiths, Trail, B. C., international affairs.

National life members named include: Mrs. W. B. Mortimer and Mrs. Blair Reid, both of Victoria; Mrs. George C. Chandler, Vancouver; and Mrs. Oscar Stonewall, Calgary.

Children Usher At St. Aidan's

A pretty wedding was solemnized recently in St. Aidan's Church when Jeannette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Rogers of Holloway Street, became the bride of Mr. Gerald Ridings, son of Mrs. D. Ridings and the late Mr. J. Ridings of Darwin.

Rev. A. G. MacLeod officiated. Given in marriage by her father the bride was charming in a white silk three-quarter length gown designed with long-sleeved lace jacket. A floral headpiece held a waist-length veil. She wore a gold and pearl necklace that belonged to her maternal grandmother. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations with freesia.

Bridesmaid Miss Pat Ridings, sister of the groom, wore a frock of American Beauty rose silk and carried a bouquet of white carnations and freesia. Her flower and veil hat matched the dress.

Miss Tracey Morris, cousin of the bride, was flower girl in a dress matching the color of the bridesmaid. She carried a nosegay of white carnations.

Mr. Bruce Morrison was groomsmen, and ushers were Master Kirk Rodgers, brother of the bride, and Master Terry Ridings, brother of the groom. Following a reception at the War Amputees Hall, Oak Bay Avenue, the couple left on an Up-Island honeymoon trip. For going away the bride changed into a mauve dress, with lilac duster coat and white accessories.

Country Fair will be held in St. Matthias Church Hall, corner of Richmond and Richardson, on Saturday, June 6. There will be a variety of stalls and a gay time is promised for those of all ages, with plenty of games and fun. Working hard on affair are (left to right) Mrs. C. H. Booth, Mrs. M. L. Setter and Mrs. H. Ludwig.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Our next door neighbors have done so many mean and petty things that we are seriously considering selling our home to get away from them. Here is the latest incident and we want your advice.

Our 11-year-old son left his bicycle in their driveway. Yes, we know he should not have backed her car over it just for been a careless, but kids will be kids. The neighbor woman pretended not to see the bike and backed her car over it just for been a careless, but kids will be kids. The bike is so badly smashed that no shop will attempt to repair it.

Now get this: After the woman wrecked our son's bike she banged on our front door, enraged, because she had been scared out of her wits. She thought at first that she had hit the boy, too.

When my husband told her husband that they owe us a new bike he replied, "You people are crazy."

We know you don't give legal advice, but what we want is common sense advice. Does this woman owe us a new bike? — NEXT DOOR TO TROUBLE

Dear Trouble: The bike was in her driveway, wasn't it? Well, the answer should be fairly obvious.

To put it another way, let the boy earn at least half the price of a new bike and YOU can supply the other half. Perhaps he will take better care of a second bike if he has to do something to earn it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I had a terrific argument. We both said some pretty harsh things to each other which we regretted later. I was so angry with him because he made a remark about my being lazy that I refused to cook his dinner. We have no children and I had eaten several hours earlier.

A close friend of mine told me that no matter how mad a woman gets she has no right to refuse to cook her husband's dinner. According to her, it is the same as if the man refused to go to work. I do not agree with her. May we have your opinion? — STILL FUMING

Dear Fuming: Since when is dinner a special favor — bestowed on a husband only when he is pleasant and agreeable?

Preparing meals is as much a woman's responsibility as bringing home the paycheck is a man's. These basic responsibilities are unconditional, an unthinkable up another punishment. Toots.

Dear Ann Landers: Thank you for taking the side of the switchboard operator. Since I handle an eight line board alone, and must do some typing as well, I know what the problems are.

I wonder if the average person realizes what it's like to be on a long distance call when three or four other calls come in. The board lights up like the Fourth of July and the operator doesn't know which one to grab first.

One wrong move disconnects the party and then you get an earful of some pretty ugly language from the world's highest paid executives.

When office employees complain about the operator listening in on personal calls you can be sure of two things:

The complainant is wasting a lot of her boss' time on her own personal calls.

The complainant's private life has some fairly unsavory aspects and she fears exposure. — CENTIPEDE SUZY

Dear Centipede: Thanks to you, and to the hundreds of other switchboard operators who write. (One gal from Orlando called me "the Patron Saint of the FBX".)

Many operators emphasized that first-rate office employees don't worry about their personal calls because they make so few and those calls are brief and "dirt-free."

Fall Show Planned

Plans for the Autumn Maple fashion show to be held in the Empress Hotel Ballroom on Sept. 9, were discussed at the June meeting of the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital. Mrs. R. W. Campbell, president, chaired the meeting, held at the nurses' residence.

Annual picnic for the members will be held at the home of Mrs. J. H. Todd, Prospect Lake, on June 10.

City Teacher Curriculum Consultant

Appointment of J. F. Cairns, staff member at Oak Bay High School, as a curriculum consultant to the department of education was announced yesterday by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

This is the third year of a plan for bringing in special advisers to the government on leave of absence from their school districts.

"PLEASED"

"I am particularly pleased with the plan," said Mr. Peterson. "It has enabled us to undertake a very extensive program of curriculum development and it also serves to keep us in close touch with schools and classrooms."

A similar appointment for R. L. McLoughlin, supervisor of elementary instruction in the Peace River district, was also announced.

As curriculum consultants they will be concerned with course revisions, text-book changes and curriculum research. They will work directly with the department's 22 committees now engaged in studying curriculum revision in all major subjects.

Oceanographic Unit For Inner Harbor?

A proposed federal oceanographic institute—marine services headquarters complex—should be established in the Inner Harbor, acting mayor Geoffrey Edgelow said yesterday.

Two sites are under consideration at the moment: on city property between Bapco Paint Co. and the CPR wharf and on federal waterfront property in the Colwood area.

"The Inner Harbor site is much more logical than the Colwood location and city council is doing everything in its power to co-operate with the federal government in this regard," said Ald. Edgelow.

This site was originally earmarked for a new Canadian Marine Services headquarters with offices, stores, and wharfs for several ocean-going vessels. Since then, the proposed development has been enlarged to include the oceanographic institute that was expected to be located on the University of Victoria's Gordon Head campus.

Oak Bay Cubs, Scouts Win Proficiency Badges

Fifteen Oak Bay Cubs and Scouts were awarded proficiency badges in various activities.

Swimming badges went to: Al Evans, Chris Fortune, Gerry Smallwood and Kim Smallwood of the Sixth Garry Oak Scout Troop.

Other badges were awarded to: Larry Wilson (athletics), Joey Moreau (collector), Scott Benton and Bruce Knapp (toy-maker) all of the Third Garry Oak Cub Troop.

Bodo de Lange Boom of the First Garry Oak Sea Scouts Group received the auto mechanic proficiency award.

Cyclist badges went to Douglas Lopeter, Chris Miller and Tony Doig; artist to Douglas Lopeter and toymaker to Kevin Morrison and Jim Murphy of the Eighth Garry Oak Cub Troop.

New Oak Bay Yard Step Closer

Construction may start this fall of a new $107,000 municipal yard for Oak Bay.

Works committee have approved initial building plans after seeing details of the $21,500 administration building and $47,000 repair shop.

VEHICLE COVERS

There is also an estimated $12,000 for asphalt surfacing, $6,000 for vehicle covers, $1,000 for a greenhouse and further costs for landscaping and curbing.

Specifications are to be prepared of the two concrete block buildings for presentation to council.

The committee also draft this week with five individual traffic problems.

They recommended that areas in front of each of four apartment blocks in the municipality be designated as loading zones. Members also suggested that parking be restricted on the south side of Bowker Avenue on both sides of St. Ann Street, between 3 p.m. and 10 p.m. and all day Saturdays and Sundays. Other traffic problems related

Chiang Losing Economic Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has announced termination of economic assistance to Chiang Kai-shek's Formosa regime after June, 1965.

Military aid will be continued. The state department said the U.S. will also continue the sale of surplus agricultural commodities under the U.S. food for peace program.

to proposed local improvement projects at Prospect Place, San Carlos Avenue, Hall Road, Falkland Road and Denison Road.

ALSO ASKING

The committee is also asking the council to approve a recommendation that frontagers on Falkland Road should pay half the $30,037 estimated cost of improvements.

The works committee is currently awaiting legal advice on an itemized $43,041 bill from a ratepayer.

The ratepayer, who left four hub caps, 25 feet of garden hose, a pair of hedge clippers and other items in a garbage can during house moving operations, claimed the can was not near the regular trash can spot. But the items were taken away all the same by garbage men, she said.

NEW!

The only 100% Colombian coffee ever offered in Canada!

Today across Western Canada, a new refinement in the cherished enjoyment of good coffee begins — with Boban. The supreme flavor and higher cost of new Boban Coffee are explained by a single fact: Boban is the only blend of pure Colombian Coffees ever offered in Canada. Colombian Coffees are the finest in all the world, hand grown and harvested on the steep slopes of the Andes Mountains, where the rich earth and mild year 'round temperatures create a paradise for coffee. Infinite care makes Boban possible. First the grower must plant tiny seedlings by hand and tend these constantly until their fifth year, when the plump red berries containing coffee beans appear. Harvesting at just the right time is essential. But the berries do not ripen all at once, so each tree is hand-picked several times. The crop is incredibly small: a good tree yields enough berries for little more than one pound of coffee each year. But what superb coffee!

A little more expensive... but worth it!

Experts judge the quality of many coffee brands by the amount of Colombian in the blend. Pure Colombian Coffee is a rarity. And Boban is a gourmet blend of 100% Colombian Coffees; brought to you fresh in vacuum sealed tins. You can't imagine how good it tastes. So try it today.

Three trapped firemen were rescued, another was burned and 15 suffered from smoke inhalation. Damage was estimated in millions.

Committee Knows What Happens To Cash Given National Drives?

By BRENDA LARGIE
OTTAWA (CP) — What happens to the money collected in local communities for national voluntary agencies? Are these national agencies worthy of support?

These are questions a citizens' organization called the National Agency Review Committee is answering for Canadians.

The committee, now 10 years old, held its annual meeting in Toronto in April to scrutinize the programs, budgets and support plans for 10 national and two provincial agencies.

The 80 committee members from across Canada include businessmen, university professors, social workers, labor leaders and civil servants. All volunteer their services.

"The committee is growing steadily every year," says secretary Laton A. Smith of Ottawa, who is also executive secretary of the Community Funds and Councils Division of the Canadian Welfare Council.

"We started off with four agencies 10 years ago and now we review 12. We may add several more in 1965."

The committee issues invitations to welfare agencies and charitable organizations to present their fund-raising programs for examination. United Fund campaigns also suggest that some agencies present their programs for review.

National agencies that regularly present their programs for review are the Boy Scouts of Canada, Boys' Clubs of Canada, Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Canadian Mental Health Association, Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Canadian Welfare Council, Health League of Canada, Multiple Sclerosis Society of Canada, St. John Ambulance Association, YMCA of Canada, Ontario Division of the March of Dimes, and the Ontario Welfare Council.

NOT POLICEMEN
New chairman of the committee is Ronald S. Ritchie of Toronto, director of Imperial Oil Limited, who stresses that the role of the committee is not a policing one. He sees its function as that of a trustee, summarizing contributors that money donated to the agencies is well spent.

For their annual two-day work sessions in Toronto, the committee members are divided into six study panels. Each panel reviews two agencies and is provided with detailed statements about them in advance.

Panel members are well acquainted with the statements before they come to the meeting. Some have even visited the agencies they are going to review.

TAKES PART
After a short session in which the panel decides what questions it is going to ask, representatives of the agency—usually the president, treasurer and executive director—participate in the review.

Businessmen accustomed to reading balance sheets are quick to spot inconsistencies and evidence of unrealistic budgeting. Agency representatives are sometimes called upon to justify unusual expenditures, on an out-of-date program or an over-ambitious expansion plan.

Often the panel comes up with helpful suggestions, and in past years many of these have been implemented.

Reports adopted by the committee are sent to 116 United Appeals across Canada and to some 200 corporations which find them useful for their donations.

Source of the fire that caused burns to the leg of five-year-old Stewart Barber, 2636 Wyndwell, is still unknown.

He was taken to the Royal Jubilee Hospital yesterday morning severely burned from the knee down. He was admitted and was in satisfactory condition last night.

BOY DIDN'T SAY
He did not say what had caused the burns yesterday when he arrived home.

His mother, Mrs. P. T. Barber, was in too much of a rush to get him to hospital to bother asking.

LOOKED IN VAIN
The boy was being kept under sedation because of pain from the burns and wasn't talking last night.

Mrs. Barber said she had a look around the neighborhood after returning home from the hospital yesterday morning but was unable to find any source of heat that might have caused the boy's burned leg.

School Aid Extended By Ottawa

Ottawa has agreed to extend aid to the provinces for technical and vocational schools for another three years.

The B.C. cabinet Tuesday authorized Education Minister Leslie Peterson to sign an amendment to its agreement providing the aid up to March 31, 1967.

The agreement is for Ottawa to pay 75 per cent of the cost of approved projects. B.C. pays the rest.

COMING OF AGE

With Sally Hamilton

By SALLY HAMILTON

Some years ago a little classic was written entitled Slender's Dress Suit. A movie was made of the story. It tells of a young businessman who has to buy a dress suit for a special occasion. Dressed in this glamorous outfit he felt so important that it gave him a new view of himself. Soon the "new man" was earning more money, buying his wife a fur coat and exploring travel fold-ers.

Whatever your age, being well groomed and well dressed will do much for your state of mind. Dr. Wilder Penfield, Canada's leading neurologist, has devoted much thought to aging. He urges senior citizens against letting their interests and their appearances fade away.

Just because the hectic days of child raising and providing for the family are over, it's no sign that you can afford to just relax and be down-at-heel. You may tell yourself that you are living for others, helping sons, daughters and grandchildren, and that you'd rather spend any spare time and money on them than on yourself.

That's a danger sign! It's an indication that you're taking yourself for granted and looking the part.

A case of a 72-year-old "beatnik" appeared recently in the news. His garb at a senior centre consisted of a yellow undershirt, khaki shorts and large, black rubber boots—that's all. These garments, worn day in and day out, were much the worse for wear. He wore a shaggy beard and his hair was uncut.

"When I got my pension I resigned from the human race," he said. "I began to live the way I wanted to. I will not dress to conform. I let the air get at me... massage me. No socks. My body breathes!"

Other people react quite differently. Freed from burdens of earlier years and with a long life expectancy, some take on new life and bounce. At a dinner party last month, I sat next to a charming woman with a trim figure and a sparkle in her eye. I remarked on her stunning hat.

"Don't tell anyone but it's out of my first old-age pension cheque!"

How long since you were complimented on your looks? If you can't remember, could be there's a reason.

Good grooming starts with good old soap and water. At a famous girls' finishing school, the instructor deals with this head on. "If you don't bath, you'll smell!"

The daily bath, the faithful use of a perspiration check, nails and hair that are cared for—these are basic. A weekly shampoo should be routine.

If you're a woman, and the budget will stand it, visit the hairdresser. If not, reserve that luxury for high occasions.

Teacher Search Pressed

Personal interviews will be the next step in a government survey on teacher recruitment. Published questionnaires asked people holding degrees who might be willing to teach, to get in touch with the department of education. About 360 were returned.

District school superintendents have been asked to interview these in search of those properly qualified who are also free to move to locations where teachers are needed.

The Joint Board of Teacher Education asked the government to conduct the survey.

Allard Likely Key Man In New Defence Setup

OTTAWA—Maj.-Gen. Jean Victor Allard, a wartime commander of the Royal 22nd Regiment, is expected to become one of the key men in the reorganized defence department.

Informed sources say the 50-year-old native of Ste. Monique, Que., likely will be named chief of operational readiness, the No. 3 job in the new defence staff, with the rank of lieutenant-general.

Moreover, Gen. Allard may become chief of the defence staff in some two years when Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, chief-designate, and Lt.-Gen. Geoffrey Walsh, vice-chief-designate, retire at about the same time. He would be the first French-speaking Canadian to reach the highest position in the armed forces.

EL PASO, Texas—Singer Abbe Lane has ended her 11-year marriage to rumba king Xavier Cugat with a divorce won in Juarez, Mexico, on grounds of incompatibility.

OTTAWA—Most Rev. Sergio Pignedoli, 54 today, one-time chaplain of the Boy Scout movement in Italy and a long-time veteran of church diplomacy, has been named by Pope Paul as apostolic delegate to Canada. He succeeds Most Rev. Sebastiano Baggio, 51, appointed papal nuncio in Brazil after five years in Canada.

BERLIN—A West Berlin newspaper has called on Queen Elizabeth to come to Berlin during the first official visit of a reigning British monarch to Germany in 55 years.

WEST LOS ANGELES—Two bandits forced their way into the home of Francis Fowler, 72, identified as head of Southern Comfort Distillery, and his wife Emily, bound them with baling wire and gagged them, then fled with jewels valued at $100,000.

OTTAWA—Acadian sculptor Claude Housset, 34-year-old resident artist of the University of Moncton, N.B., will receive the Allied Arts Medal of the Royal Canadian Architectural Institute during its annual assembly in St. Andrews, N.B., June 20.

NEW YORK—Frank Costello, the former underworld czar who once admitted he kept thousands of dollars in cash lying around in his plush Manhattan apartment, was arrested on a charge of vagrancy—no visible means of support.

After a couple of hours of police questioning, during which Costello admitted to little more than the civilian counterpart of name, rank and serial number, he was released.

VIENNA—Criminal investigation against a Vienna policeman who arrested young Jewish diarist Anne Frank during the Second World War has been suspended. However, a disciplinary investigation against policeman Karl Silberbauer, 52, who admitted arresting Anne Frank in Amsterdam in August, 1944, will be continued.

COQUITLAM—The Coquitlam school board has dismissed charges of cruelty in administering corporal punishment levelled at principal James Silvers. Instead, the board commended him for his administration of Sir Frederick Banting secondary school and declared the matter closed.

CHICAGO—James E. Hoffa, on trial on mail fraud and conspiracy charges, says he has received more than $50,000 from Teamsters union members to help defray his legal expenses. The Teamsters' president told reporters "Another $25,000 has been pledged and more is coming."

DUISBURG—West German vice-chancellor Erich Mende has been re-elected chairman of the Free Democratic Party.

LA PAZ—Two former allies of President Victor Paz Estenssoro have ended a four-day hunger strike against his re-election but said they would try to unite political opposition to the president. They are vice-president Juan Lechin and former president Hernan Siles Suazo.

Holdup Accused Cashed Cheque

Bank records introduced in court yesterday indicated Clarence William Kraft cashed a $50 cheque in the Saanich branch of the Bank of Montreal April 24 two hours before the branch was robbed of $7,287.83.

Kraft is charged with being one of four men who robbed the bank.

TELLS OF HOLDUP

Donald McNabb, manager of the Cook-Quadrant branch told magistrate's court yesterday how three men with revolvers or pistols entered the bank just before 6 p.m. April 24 and one of them came to him in his office saying: "This is a holdup, don't move."

Yesterday, Jean Cheslain Robitaille, one of two men now serving 10 years for the crime, was brought into court and was identified by Mr. McNabb as the man who had spoken to him.

HAD ACCOUNT

Mr. McNabb also testified Kraft had a personal savings account in the bank and in March this year had closed it to open a business checking account. He had made deposits of up to $1,800 in the latter account.

Kraft—who is defending himself on the charge—asked Mr. McNabb why a cheque was brought to his attention Monday, three days after the robbery, and suggested the police had asked him to look for his cheque.

NOTED NAME

Mr. McNabb said this was not the case, but he had noted Kraft's name after it had been "widely publicized" following the holdup.

Kraft remarked at this point he had not been aware of the publicity as he had been "on a holiday out of town" after the offence.

He was arrested in New Jersey several days later, and charged with the crime.

Under cross-examination, Mr. McNabb said he had not seen Kraft participate in the robbery.

Teeth Sunk In Arm Of the Law

Victoria Const. Ronar Hannay, called to the scene of a disturbance Tuesday night, put the arm on David Cary, 20, of 630 Michigan. The latter bit the arm of the law.

Const. Hannay was called to the 400-block San Jose late Tuesday after a woman complained of a man urinating in her driveway.

Cary punched, and kicked him several times, he told court yesterday, before biting him on the left forearm.

The officer said Cary "fought all the way to the station," after being charged with assaulting a peace officer.

He will be sentenced for the offence June 5.

Gilbey's describe how to garnish a dry martini

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance for the classic dry martini. A dry flavour that has been the international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Since its invention the dry martini has always been graced with an olive. Very proper with the pit left in. Stuffed olives are acceptable, too.

Third Wave?

Typhoid Toll Rises

ABERDEEN (Reuters) — Health authorities expressed fear that a third wave of typhoid may be sweeping this Scottish city as 30 more persons were admitted to hospital Wednesday, bringing the total to 301 in the two-week epidemic.

A hunt was launched throughout Britain for cans of possibly infected corned beef—said to be the source of the outbreak.

Latest official figures listed 262 confirmed cases of typhoid and 39 suspected ones in the northeastern port city.

ONE DEATH

The only death reported here in connection with the typhoid was that of an elderly woman who also suffered from two other diseases.

As the search for the infected cans of corned beef spread, county councils and local health committees banned corned beef from school menus and some city stores.

OTHER CASES

In other parts of Britain 13 cases were reported—six of them definitely confirmed as typhoid.

Aberdeen's medical officer, Dr. Ian McQueen, called for the names of two suspected brands of corned beef to be revealed "in the public interest."

Kissed to Death

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI)—The life-like model used by the St. John Ambulance Brigade to demonstrate the "kiss of life"—mouth-to-mouth respiration—has been "kissed to death" and is completely worn out, the brigade's superintendent said Wednesday.

Rivers Over Banks

By The CANADIAN PRESS

British Columbia rivers are on a spring run-off rampage, forcing families to flee low ground in several communities.

Late-cresting rivers spilled their banks Wednesday, sweeping a farmhouse away, severing roads, cutting a rail line, giving school children a holiday and eroding valuable farm land.

HARD HIT

Cottonwood Island on the outskirts of Prince George was the hardest hit of the areas as waters of the Nechako River swirled around more than a score of homes and forced closure of a school.

Residents began evacuation over the last dry road to Prince George as drinking water became polluted and garbage drifted down main streets.

READY TO MOVE

Civil Defence authorities were standing by in case the Canada's notoriously tight-lipped Chinese communities before finally laying the charges.

West of Prince George in north-central B.C., 50 families in Terrace prepared to evacuate their flood-threatened homes at an hour's notice. Three families moved late Tuesday.

Paul Bogeland, Civil Defence co-ordinator, said the town itself was beyond the reach of the rampaging Skeena River but the 50 homes lay in a low area.

HIGHWAY CLOSED

Covered by two feet of water, the Trans-Province Highway was closed east and west of the threatened town and ferries traversing the Skeena were halted.

The Canadian National Railway line to coastal Prince Rupert was washed out by the boiling Morice River near Houston, midway between Terrace and Prince George.

TRAIN HELD

The CNR sent repair crews to the half-mile washout from both sides of the damaged section. A westbound train was held at Smithers and passengers taken by bus to Prince George over partially flooded roads.

Three Suffer Crash Burns

LADYSMITH—Three unidentified people were taken to Nanaimo hospital for treatment of burns last night after their car turned over at Brenton Page Road and the highway, 3 1/4 miles north of here. The car was a total loss.

Chong Wing Ming, 46, of 817 Kings, is charged with eight counts of conspiracy involving alleged forged passports. The charges involve 26 Chinese.

BROTHER-IN-LAW HELD

While he was quietly being brought before the court, his brother-in-law, Quon Chung Hung, was arrested in Dauphin, Man., and faces three similar charges.

The case may have repercussions all over western Canada, police feel—wherever there is a Chinese community.

36 INVOLVED

Police and special Crown prosecutor W. R. McIntyre will attempt to prove the two applied for passports from Ottawa in the names of the 26, who then entered Canada under the guise of returning travellers.

An RCMP officer said the 26 have since settled all over western Canada, and there are "quite a few nervous people in Chinatowns all over the country."

LONG PROBE

Police, fearful of undermining the Crown's case, are reluctant to discuss too many details of their investigation, but it is known the case has been under study since last August.

At that time, RCMP Cpt. W. J. Malloran, based at Vancouver, led the special passport and visa squad in a painstaking investigation through reams of documents dating back to 1961.

SCORES OF LEADS

They traced scores of leads through "more than one" of Canada's notoriously tight-lipped Chinese communities before finally laying the charges.

Engineer Gives Life

BRADFORD, England (Reuters)—An English railroad engineer gave his life Wednesday in a last-minute effort to warn passengers that the train he was driving was about to crash.

Engineer John Smith blared a warning on his diesel locomotive horn just before the two-coach train slammed into a stationary mail train at the station.

Great Victory

Let's Join and Win Barry Tells Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona followed up his "great victory" in the California primary Wednesday with a plea to Governor

Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to join him in mobilizing the Republican party to win the U.S. presidency in November.

But Rockefeller, Goldwater's narrowly defeated rival in the California balloting for the crucial Republican convention votes, made it clear he is not halting his drive for the Republican presidential nomination.

NOT DROPPING OUT

"I'm not dropping out of anything," Rockefeller told a press conference in New York. Republican leaders divided sharply on the meaning of Goldwater's California victory.

"It is going to be very difficult for the opposition to put together any coalition (to stop him) because they don't have the delegate votes," said former senator William F. Knowland of California. He managed Goldwater's California campaign.

Spry 'Dev' Cuffs British As U.K. Envoy Looks On

OTTAWA (CP)—President Eamon de Valera of Ireland, a spry, 81-year-old, stuck it in the eye of the British Wednesday in an off-the-cuff speech to the Canadian Club.

"They used us as a cheap ranch," he said.

Two places down the head table, Sir Henry Lintott, British high commissioner to Canada, remained impassive.

"Dev," who later departed by air for Boston, said "Britain was having it from us in both ways"—as a cheap ranch for food and as a market for industrial goods.

Earlier, External Affairs

Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland and Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin conferred for 90 minutes. They spent nearly half of this time on the situation in Cyprus, where Canadian and Irish troops are serving with the United Nations force.

Informants said the two

ministers also discussed The Congo, the next UN General Assembly and the July conference here on establishment of an international peacekeeping force.

Mr. de Valera, who received three standing ovations at the crowded Canadian Club luncheon, recalled that he had come close to visiting Canada once before—in 1919 and 1920 when he was on a fund-raising campaign in the United States.

But he had been a little anxious about landing on British territory. He might have been free no longer to carry on his fight for Irish independence.

Centenary to Come Deep in Recession

MINNA, Ont. (CP)—A professor of economics at the University of Ottawa predicted Wednesday Canada will mark its centenary in 1967 at the bottom of the next economic recession.

Dr. O. J. Firestone, vice-dean of the university's faculty of social sciences, told a Manitoba labor-management seminar sponsored by the University of Manitoba to expect a slowdown in the economy beginning in 1965 and a recession to follow.

However, he said the period of recession should be followed by a period of economic expansion "probably greater than anything we have seen since the end of the Second World War."

Dr. Firestone, a former top economist with the federal trade department, said the current economic expansion, now in its fourth year, will continue another year and predicted an increase of six to seven per cent in the gross national product.

Automation Could 'Rip Us Apart'

By DAN FOWERS

EDMONTON (CP)—The time may come when society must decide whether to keep the newsboy, apartment guard, factory worker and grocery clerk, instead of allowing machines to do their jobs, a United States sociologist said Wednesday.

Dr. Burton R. Clark, an associate professor in the Centre for the Study of Higher Education at the University of California, Berkeley, said that if through research society discovered automation was ripping apart social values, then it may have to "slow down automation or stop its processes."

It would be a good idea, the sociologist said, to undertake a study of young, non-working persons in families on relief to see how they would react or adapt to a life of leisure without work—a possibility that automation has raised.

"My plea is for a great deal of research so that we can make a reasonable judgment on the effects of automation," Dr. Clark told an international conference on education and automation sponsored by the University of Alberta.

Automation, Dr. Clark said, had had "awesome effects." The street-corner newsboy, for example, "was the eyes on the street." Before he was replaced by the metal newspaper dispenser.

Pope Paul prays at tomb of Pope John XXIII.

Plea of 50,000 People:

Make John a Saint

VATICAN CITY (AP)—In the north Italian birthland of Pope John XXIII, a move was started Wednesday to make him a saint. A petition signed by 50,000 people in Bergamo province was presented to a bishop of the Roman Catholic Church asking for proceedings to beatify Pope John, who died a year ago Wednesday.

Beatification is a step toward canonization as a saint. Bishop Clemente Gaddi of Bergamo said the petition would be sent promptly to the Congregation of Rites at the Vatican.

The congregation handles causes for beatification and canonization. Beatification is the process of establishing that one may be publicly venerated by Roman Catholics in a particular area. It bestows the title of "blessed."

STRONG FACTOR

It will be up to Pope Paul and the Congregation of Rites to determine whether a cause for beatification should be opened.

Vatican sources said a petition with so many names—showing popular devotion to John XXIII—would be a strong factor.

There is no fixed time for beatification. Pope Pius X was the last pontiff beatified and canonized.

Spy Trial Curiously Timed

Swedes Counter Khrushchev Visit

By ROLAND HUNTER from Stockholm

there an American citizen working for the British Secret Service.

By his own account, Wennerstrom was fascinated from that point on by intelligence work. Sent to Moscow as Swedish air attaché in the autumn of 1940, he made contact with his German opposite number, for whom he was able to obtain information on the area between Murmansk and Leningrad which was extremely valuable for operation Barbarossa, then being planned.

In this way Wennerstrom's name was known to the German intelligence organization, and when this was taken over by the Americans after the war, Wennerstrom says he was approached by contacts at their Stockholm embassy to continue his work.

Again, by his own account, he did so when sent again as air attaché to Moscow in 1948. The information is supposed to have been about possible bomb targets for the United States strategic air force.

In the meantime, Wennerstrom had begun to work for the Russians, and for some time appears to have acted as a double agent.

Wennerstrom says he sold for $10,000 the plans of a secret Swedish airfield, the first of his work for the Russians.

Throughout his service in Moscow until 1949, as a staff officer in Stockholm until 1952, as Swedish air attaché in Washington from 1952 until 1957, and subsequently at the Defence Staff and Foreign Office in Stockholm, Wennerstrom worked diligently.

According to the report, Wennerstrom betrayed Swedish defence secrets and, through his Washington contacts, details of American rockets, bombers, and NATO preparedness.

The Russians valued the confidence which they knew Swedish officers enjoyed in the West, and used him to spy on American officers in Germany. At the time of his arrest, in June last year, he was about to leave for Spain, about which the Russians were anxious, for it was the only European country about which they lacked information concerning bases and airfields.

The publication of the transcript has been curiously timed, for it is a bare month before the arrival of Nikita Khrushchev on his official visit to Sweden. It has already served to jolt public opinion and will doubtless do much to counteract any propaganda speeches made by Khrushchev.

The "Wennerstrom affair" culminates with the verdict and sentence on June 11. Since it appears from the interrogation that he has confessed, and that the evidence supports this, he can scarcely escape a verdict of guilty, and the heaviest sentence known to Swedish law: life imprisonment.

This will occur exactly four days before Khrushchev begins his Scandinavian tour in Denmark.

Is the Time Ripe For New Hitler?

By STERLING G. SLAPPEY, from Bonn

Fear is emerging in Germany that a political leader or rabble rouser will be able to use discontent over the division of Germany to launch a career.

The people remember that Adolf Hitler used discontent over the Versailles Treaty to launch himself 40 years ago. This fear is frightening, not just for the West, but also for the Soviet Union, which actually holds the only power which could permit reunification of East and West Germany.

It is fed by the sense of futility which is spreading over West Germany. The Federal Republic of the West and the German Democratic Republic of the Communist East are not likely to be reunified for many years.

Informed Germans in and out of government say more of their countrymen have come to realize this recently.

In recent months the United States and Soviet Union have been getting along better than at any time since the war. Such things as the new consular treaty, partial test-ban treaty and agreement to curtail production of fissionable materials have lowered temperatures between East and West.

At the same time this quasi-detente is said to have dropped western pressure for the reunification of Germany. Reunification is now thought to be far toward the bottom of the list of world problems.

During the recent North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting in The Hague, two events took place which, in the German view, proved that the West does not want to push for reunification soon.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, British Foreign Secretary Richard Butler and French Foreign Minister Couve de Murville put out a special announcement saying in effect that the three powers would not approve a new western initiative in the immediate future toward settlement of reunification and other German problems.

Three days later the communiqué on the ending of the NATO meeting backed the principle of reunification and free elections in the Communist East. But the communiqué did not stress a time element.

Bonn Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder was deeply disappointed.

Schroeder needed more evidence of allied interest in reunification and the German problem to fight off attacks by ousted Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss and others who oppose him.

U.S. and British unwillingness to rock the international boat during election year, and especially at a time when the Soviet Union has eased off a bit, is understood by Schroeder, Chancellor Ludwig Erhard and other leaders.

But Strauss, fired as a cabinet officer in 1962 for lying to parliament and for high-handed arrests of journalists critical to him, has been attacking Schroeder, and trying to add to his already great support among refugees, right-wingers and ex-soldiers. His objective is to become foreign minister after the 1965 German elections.

Hans Christoph Seebohm, minister of transport, caused a furor a week ago when he demanded again in a speech that refugees in Germany be allowed to return to the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia, there to be allowed to establish their own national status.

This smacked of a similar Hitler demand of 1938, and cold shivers ran down spines in the Bonn government.

Seebohm is 61 and generally not popular. There is little fear that he has ideas of turning himself into anything more than a cabinet minister. But there is fear that someone else with greater ambition might try to use Seebohm and his followers.

Indians Win Fire Protection

NORTH COWICHAN — The Cowichan Indian reserve, which has long been without fire protection, will finally get it for some of the homes along Tantalus Road from the Southend volunteer fire department.

North Cowichan municipal council decided yesterday to have a bylaw written to define the protection area.

The Indians, supported by the local Indian affairs branch, asked council some months ago for the protection and members of the Southend brigade favor the move.

Coun. John Cannon told council that a group of the Indians will be instructed in firefighting.

Councillors decided the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum Society can begin laying track for its narrow-gauge logging train over the Drinkwater Road access to Somena Lake.

Coun. Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn, the municipal representative on the museum committee, said the railroad crossing will not impair the access. The present access will remain open until the affected section of Drinkwater is rerouted further north.

The cost will be met from the $5,000 council has pledged to give the museum in the form of improvement work.

SATISFACTORILY
Coun. Dobbyn reported the museum is progressing satisfactorily.

Councillors for the first time viewed a surveyor's proposed Maple Bay peninsula road on a map of the peninsula.

The two-mile road through land both privately and municipally-owned will not be built for some years.

VIEWS STATED
Coun. Smith said he felt it would be "ridiculous" to appropriate land for the road.

Coun. Cannon pointed out the road will increase property values and therefore boost tax revenues.

Coun. George Whittaker said children will have to be transported to school if the road is built and claimed it would be unfair to the school board to have to provide this transportation.

Sewers In Fall

DEPARTURE BAY — Construction of this area's sewer system, approved by voters recently, will begin in October with an assist from the winter works program, fire protection district trustee Norman Oliver said yesterday.

He said survey work and plans will be completed by the end of the summer.

Busiest Man in Town

By LYNNE WALLER

NANAIMO — The busiest man in town last week was Reg Broome, the catering manager at the Tally-Ho, who organized meals for delegates attending three annual provincial conventions.

Mr. Broome, former manager of the Park Royal Hotel and St. Mawes by the Sea, a hotel and restaurant in West Vancouver, estimates more than 4,000 people were served meals at banquets between Sunday, May 24, and Sunday, May 31.

The eventful week began with the arrival of more than 100 delegates to the B.C. Arena and Stadium managers convention on the Sunday.

They wound up their affairs Wednesday morning and later in the day Jaycees and participants in the provincial drama festival began to pour in.

The Jaycee convention lasted until a final breakfast Sunday and the drama festival finished with a smorgasbord and dance Saturday night.

Mr. Broome averaged four hours of sleep a night the first four nights and two hours a night the rest of the week.

He and representatives of the three organizations had been mapping out strategy since January and he and his staff were, he says, "all keyed up and ready to go. We were very highly organized."

The Jaycees had the most exotic tastes, with a run-runners' banquet, pirate dance, south seas banquet, Polynesian night and smorgasbord with suckling pig.

Mr. Broome said the most fun to prepare was a "mess-up meal" which was actually a breakfast for past presidents. Rolls three and four days old.

undercooked red and green colored eggs, burned bacon and sausages were "actually successful," he said.

More a date conventions ahead at the Tally-Ho are those of provincial tax assessors and B.C. planners. More than 300 B.C. and Yukon postmasters hold a convention at the Shoreline Hotel next week.

Missing Body Pulls Switch

NORTH COWICHAN — It wouldn't have helped solve the case of the missing body in Fullers Lake but Champlain citizens can thank the "body" for the fact they seem to have won a fight for an automatic phone switch.

The citizens have been trying for some time to have the switch installed in Champlain RCMP headquarters. If nobody was there, the switch would automatically send calls on to the Duncan detachment.

North Cowichan was told about the "body" yesterday by Coun. Gerry Smith, who had recommended the switch. It seems an unidentified Duncan man took a swim

Monday in Fullers Lake, then left clad only in swimming trunks.

Someone found his clothes and called Champlain police, volunteer firemen and skin divers, who searched frantically for half an hour until the forgetful man remembered—and returned.

Coun. Smith said someone tried to phone Duncan police during the frantic half-hour but nobody answered.

Steve Donaldson pointed out a phone switch would not have helped in this case. Councillors agreed, but still decided to support the Smith recommendation and ordered an immediate investigation of the cost of the switch.

Families Escape Nanaimo Fires

NANAIMO — Mr. and Mrs. Hank Lewis and their three children fled from their home at 147 Irwin Street late Tuesday after being awakened by smoke from a blaze smoldering in a chest-of-drawers chair. The fire department confined the blaze to the chair and damage was light.

Firemen were called out again Wednesday morning to the home of Matthew John at 380 Milton Street, where two sleeping children were carried to safety. A chimney fire had spread through the attic of the old wooden frame dwelling. No one was injured and damage was not extensive.

ALBERNI — Raymond Primeau of the Nanaimo Highway was sentenced yesterday to 14 days in jail on two charges which grew out of a local accident May 8. Primeau, who left B.C. after the accident, returned voluntarily from Edmonton to face charges of dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. He pleaded guilty.

NANAIMO — Formal approval has been received from Ottawa to the site and plans for the Commercial Inlet development project, and for a water pipeline from Sproat Lake to the Mac-Powell pulp mill in Alberni.

LAKE COWICHAN — Students and staff of Stanley Gordon Elementary School will join to present the musical play The Travelling Musicians in the school at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The three-act play, based on a story by the brothers Grimm, is adapted by Joan Cobbold with music by Martin Shaw. Director is Mrs. G. Smith.

GALIANO ISLAND — Pender Island has won the first part of inter-island men's golf for the Bannockburn trophy, scoring 9½ points at the Galiano Golf and Country Club to eight for Galiano and 8½ for Salt Spring. The golfers: Pender—Ted, Les and Elmer Bowerman, Percy and Don Grimmer, Al Evans, Norris Amies and Wally Bradley; Galiano—Dr. H. D. Barner, Bill Beach, Mel Spouse, Hubert Peiser, Stanley Page, Archie Georgeason and Peter and Robin Denroche; Salt Spring—Fred Ball, Reg Price.

Pete Cartwright, Walter Carlson, Ken Ralph, Doug Sapie and Ed Richardson.

TOFINO — Local miner Albert Drum, 30, seriously hurt when he fell down a shaft at the new Hamel mine at Tranquill Creek on Tofino Inlet, has been flown to Vancouver for hospital treatment. He suffered head, arm and leg injuries.

NANAIMO — CPO Cadet Les Shaw was named cadet of the year during the recent annual inspection of the Amphion sea cadet corps. Other winners were Keith Henderson, best first-year cadet, and Laurie Bullock and David Stephens, proficiency and attendance.

PORT ALBERNI — Building permits total $1,631,130 so far this year, says building inspector William Fraser, compared to $819,000 for the first five months of 1963. The May total of $150,480 included eight new homes.

GALIANO ISLAND — An exhibition and sale of the arts and crafts of Gulf Islands residents will take place in the Douglas Room of the Hudson's Bay store in Victoria July 17 to 25. The sponsor will be the Gulf Islands branch of the B.C. Historical Society and the convener Mrs. F. E. Robson of Galiano, assisted by Mrs. B. J. Freeman of South Pender and Mrs. A. M. Brown of Salt Spring.

PORT ALBERNI — The Chamber of Commerce has rejected a motion to meet at night once a month and will continue its weekly luncheon gatherings.

GALIANO ISLAND — Jane Bambrick, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. H. Bambrick, has made it three years in a row as a champion at the Salt Spring Island sports day. This year she won the senior cup, last year the intermediate trophy and two years ago the junior cup.

Annual Today

NANAIMO — The Bastion annual, edited by Mariella Johnson and Bruce Johnston, will be distributed today at Nanaimo Senior Secondary School. It has an Egyptian motif this year. Students will take part in the annual church parade Sunday, to St. Andrew's United Church.

Adult Educator Leaving

PORT ALBERNI — The district school board has appointed Archie Dick, director of the Courtenay adult education program for 2½ years, to replace Jindra Kulich as director of adult education here.

Mr. Kulich, whose program has been called one of the best in B.C., will return to UBC to seek a master's degree in adult education.

The school board approved bids of Port Alberni Home Builders Ltd. of $105,537 for a Maquina School addition, $83,929 for a new Beaver Creek school and $57,996 for a Redford Street School addition.

Five other firms tendered. The board learned there may not be enough room in Alberni District Secondary School for the 185 students likely to enter Grade 8 next fall. The 68 from Calgary school likely will enrol at ADSS but the 127 from Maquina, Wood and Eighth Avenue schools probably will go to A. W. Neill school by bus.

Canadian Steel Sales Accused

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. treasury said Monday that steel sales manufactured by a Canadian firm are being sold at less than fair value in the United States.

The case now goes to the tariff commission to determine whether the U.S. steel industry is being injured by the sales.

Shopping Hours Studied

PARKSVILLE — The village commission has decided to consider a request from Parkville merchants for a revision of the store closing bylaw to standardize hours.

A group of merchants attending the regular commission meeting asked that hours be set at 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. through the week except for Friday, when hours would be 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.

BEACH SURVEY

The commission also decided, after discussing whether to rent or buy beach-cleaning equipment, to have a committee survey all methods and costs of cleaning beaches.

Commissioners also:

● Gave three readings to a bylaw to amend the commercial vehicle licensing bylaw. Exemption plates will no longer be free but will cost $2 each.

● Read an amendment to the zoning bylaw which will allow the rezoning of the southeast corner of Middleton and Craig Streets from residential to general and commercial.

● Gave three readings to the parks regulations bylaw, which rules out overnight camping in the community park this season.

● Authorized the purchase of a new general purpose pick-up type truck with a dump box for general village use.

● Was told a paving program will soon begin on Lombard Street, R. and E. Crumming and Contracting Co. of Parkville has the contract.

● Learned plans are being made for the installation of sidewalks on both sides of the Alberni highway in the centre of the village and for renewal of the sidewalk along the north side of Reynold Street.

● Learned a curb and gutter project has begun along the north side of the Alberni highway from the Rod and Gun Hotel to the Island Highway.

Freighter Waits In Nanaimo

NANAIMO — A Japanese freighter is at anchor in Nanaimo harbor awaiting the end of the office workers' strike in Port Alberni.

The Himeya Maru is partially loaded with general cargo and pulp from Himeya and is waiting to load pulp at the Mac-Powell mill in Port Alberni before returning to Japan.

Unless the owners decide otherwise, the freighter will wait it out here until the strike ends and longshoremen return to work at the pulp mill. The ship, under Capt. T. Nishikawa, arrived May 21.

Leslie Peterson Rally Speaker

Labor and Education Minister Leslie Peterson is going to speak to the Oregon Bankers' Association convention in the Empress Hotel June 14-15 on the topic: What Every Banker Should Know. Mr. Peterson was the first major government speaker to tell the provincial legislature about plans for the proposed new Bank of B.C.

Tiny Monkeys at Duncan Relish Island Termites

DUNCAN — Two cotton-top marmosets, the smallest monkeys in the world, have joined the growing population of the Duncan zoo.

Zoo operator Jim Oyen says the marmosets, seven inches long plus tails, were caught in a Brazilian jungle recently and spent a short time in Florida's Tarpon Zoo to become used to North America's climate.

Their favorite diet is termites, which are plentiful in the damp forests of Vancouver Island.

Other new additions at the zoo are a box constrictor, sand fish, collar lizards, a desert iguana and a giant lizard with a thorny, spiked body.

The most colorful new arrivals are sulphur-breasted, white-breasted and colored Aracari toucans with enormous beaks, and a full-grown Mexican eagle called a caracara.

Final 35 Rivals Seek Places in 4-H Event

By KLAUS MUEHNER

DUNCAN — Eliminations start next week in southern Vancouver Island for the 35 4-H club members still eligible to go to the 1964 provincial club week in New Denver July 13 to 17.

Duncan district agriculturist Ken Jamieson, 4-H supervisor for the southern Island, will choose 11 boys and girls.

They will make up the largest contingent among the 80 4-H members from across B.C. at New Denver. There are 16 club districts across the province.

Of the 35 youngsters still in the running, 27 live in the Saanich area and the other eight in the Cowichan-Cobbie Hill district.

Also going to the club week will be one of two remaining candidates for a $700 Canadian National Exhibition scholarship given annually to a boy planning to study agriculture or a girl interested in home economics.

The two are Wendy Baker, 17, of the Saanich Jersey Club, and Nancy Miller, 18, of the Saanich Home Arts Club.

Last year, this scholarship also went to Saanich. Winner John Stanlake will work this summer for the agriculture department as a 4-H assistant in the North Okanagan.

One of the 80 at the New Denver event will be chosen to attend the 1964 international 4-H club week in Washington, D.C.

The 14 top youngsters will go to the national club week at Ottawa and Toronto during the Royal Winter Fair in November. The next nine best will participate in the inter-provincial 4-H exchange in July, 1965.

Last year's winners of this award included Lynne Lannon from the Saanich Home Arts Club and Albert Hull from the 3-8 Beef Club. Lynne will go this July to eastern Canada and Albert is going to Alberta.

Mr. Jamieson said the primary objective of the New Denver event is leadership training but also featured will be selected lectures on many farm topics.

Sports and talent shows will be other highlights of the annual gathering.

List of winners from recent 4-H field days in both the Saanich and Cowichan-Cobbie Hill districts include many who are in the running for the New Denver event.

But Mr. Jamieson stressed these field days have no direct bearing on the final selection.

Robin Paul Stead of Campbell River, the driver of the first car, also was fined $20.

Joseph Allard of Crain of Comox was fined $125 and given a four-month licence suspension for impaired driving.

Police said de Crain's car left Anderson Road at high speed, travelled 300 feet along a ditch, returned to the road and crashed into another car, causing $2,100 damage.

First Clyne Statement

Strikers, Mac-Powell Fail in New Parley

Negotiations resumed yesterday on the 15-day-old Alberni office workers' strike, hard on the heels of the first statement during the strike by MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River chairman J. V. Clyne.

Deputy labor minister William Sands and officials of Mac-Powell and the Office Employees International Union met in Vancouver in a parley arranged by Labor Minister Peterson.

Mr. Sands said no agreement was reached. Both sides agreed to continue meeting but no date was set for future talks.

Mr. Clyne said the company "does not believe it is in the best interests of collective bargaining to engage in a public argument."

But in view of picketing at the Harma plant near Nanaimo, halted Monday by a court injunction—"the company believes it is necessary to restate its position."

A union request for compulsory union membership was "the main issue."

RAND FORMULA

The company agreed with a conciliation board report—rejected by the union—to the Rand formula, under which all office workers must pay union dues but each employee may decide whether or not to join.

Company policy was that everyone should be free to join any association of his choice. "It follows that the company will not force an employee to join any association against his own free will."

NO OBJECTION

The company did not object to the office workers organizing and joining a union and it has recognized the union as bargaining agent for 64 office employees in Port Alberni.

The company should be able to attract suitable office workers without requiring them to join a union, he said. They worked closely with management and in this respect differ from most unionized mill workers.

Mother Killed

Children Get $40,000

NANAIMO — Four Nanaimo children whose 24-year-old mother was killed in a 1962 traffic accident on the Hope-Princeton Highway will receive $40,000 from a Vancouver trucking company in an out-of-court settlement.

Mrs. Henry Wong died instantly when the car she was driving met head-on with a half-ton pickup truck owned by the Angelo Ghini trucking firm. Her four daughters suffered minor injuries and now are staying with relatives. They are Terry Lynn Wong, six months at the time of the accident; and three children by a previous marriage, Debbie, 7, Shelley, 6, and Kim Norton, 4.

Lawyer Harold Hine announced yesterday the settlement was approved in a Vancouver court May 14 and the $40,000 will be held in trust for the children. Mrs. Wong was part owner of the Rendezvous Cafe in downtown Nanaimo.

Most Nanaimo Groups Help Disaster Fund

NANAIMO — Almost every organization in the Nanaimo district has donated to the Alberni Valley and West Coast Disaster Fund, but the fund is still open here, James MacDonald said yesterday.

Mr. MacDonald is an official of the DeMolay Newcastle chapter. Mayor Pete Maffeo gave the DeMolay and Job's Daughters Bethel 11 the job of collecting money locally for the fund.

The result of the activities was a total of $6,689 in gifts from individuals, service clubs and other organizations.

William Henry Fenton

'Doomed Baby' 92 Years Old

By KEN JOHNSON

William Henry Fenton was given five weeks to live when he was born—and he celebrates his 92nd birthday Friday.

Now partially blind, Mr. Fenton, 613 Avalon, was born in Staffordshire, England, came to Canada 50 years ago and has lived in Victoria since 1955.

"I came to Canada because I was a slave in England—spiritually, that is," he says.

"I found my freedom here in Canada. I've been back to England three times in the past 10 years."

"Much to their disgust I boasted of being a Canadian not an Englishman. Still many of my friends in England feel that out here I live not very far from the wigwag and the tomahawk."

A life-long educationist, Mr. Fenton taught commercial and other subjects both in England and in Canada—in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Vancouver and New Westminster.

He mastered four languages besides English—Latin, French, Greek and Esperanto—and two shorthand systems.

Still quite active despite his blindness and his years, Mr.

Fenton hopes to tell his life-story in a book.

"It's not a story that can be told in five minutes," he says. "I've been dying for 92 years, but I'd like to publish my autobiography before I do die."

"I'd need someone to help me," he said, pointing to a row of shelves filled with yellowed manuscripts. "Those are things I've written on every subject you can mention—but I've never had any of them published."

Mr. Fenton's career as a teacher ended when he began to go blind 15 years ago. He was then operating the Fenton Commercial School in Vancouver.

Married in Cornwall, England, his wife died in 1951. He has a son who works as an airline passenger service manager in Vancouver.

Families Flee Floods

B.C. RIVERS ON RAMPAGE

Rail Lines Homes Roads Hit

By The Canadian Press

British Columbia rivers are on a spring run-off rampage, forcing families to flee low ground in several communities.

Late-cresting rivers spilled their banks Wednesday, sweeping a farmhouse away, severing roads, cutting a rail line, giving school children a holiday and eroding valuable farm land.

HARD HIT

Cottonwood Island on the outskirts of Prince George was the hardest hit of the areas as waters of the Nechako River swirled around more than a score of homes and forced closure of a school.

Residents began evacuation over the last dry road to Prince George as drinking water became polluted and garbage drifted down main streets.

READY TO MOVE

Civil Defence authorities were standing by in case the road link was washed out as the Nechako continued to rise.

West of Prince George in north-central B.C., 50 families in Terrace prepared to evacuate their flood-threatened homes at an hour's notice. Three families moved late Tuesday.

Paul Bogeland, Civil Defence co-ordinator, said the town itself was beyond the reach of the rampaging Skeena River but the 50 homes lay in a low area.

HIGHWAY CLOSED

Covered by two feet of water, the Trans-Provincial Highway was closed east and west of the threatened town and ferries traversing the Skeena were halted.

The Canadian National Railways line to coastal Prince Rupert was washed out by the boiling Morice River near Houston, midway between Terrace and Prince George.

TRAIN HELD

The CNR sent repair crews to the half-mile washout from both sides of the damaged section. A westbound train was held at Smithers and passengers taken by bus to Prince George over partially flooded roads.

As Envoy Looks On

British Cuffed By Spry 'Dev'

OTTAWA (CP)—President Eamon de Valera of Ireland, a spry 81-year-old, stuck it in the eye of the British Wednesday in an off-the-cuff speech to the Canadian Club.

"They used us as a cheap ranch," he said.

Two places down the head table, Sir Henry Lintott, British high commissioner to Canada, remained impassive. "Dev," who later departed by air for Boston, said "Britain was having it from us in both ways"—as a cheap ranch for food and as a market for industrial goods.

Earlier, External Affairs Minister Frank Aiken of Ireland and Canadian External Affairs Minister Martin conferred for 30 minutes. They spent nearly half of this time on the situation in Cyprus, where Canadian and Irish troops are serving with the United Nations force.

Informants said the two ministers also discussed the Congo, the next UN General Assembly and the July conference here on establishment of an international peacekeeping force.

Mr. de Valera, who received three standing ovations at the crowded Canadian Club luncheon, recalled that he had come close to visiting Canada once before—in 1919 and 1920 when he was on a fund-raising campaign in the United States. But he had been a little anxious about landing on British territory. He might have been free no longer to carry on his fight for Irish independence.

Passport Racket

City Man Charged

By ALAN CAMPBELL

A Victoria man was arraigned in city magistrate's court yesterday in connection with what police described as the largest immigration racket case in Canadian history.

Chong Wing Ming, 46, of 817 Kings, is charged with eight counts of conspiracy involving alleged forged passports. The charges involve 26 Chinese.

While he was quietly being brought before the court, his brother-in-law, Quon Chung Hung, was arrested in Dauphin, Man., and faces three similar charges.

The case may have repercussions all over western Canada, police feel—wherever there is a Chinese community.

26 INVOLVED

Police and special Crown prosecutor W. R. McIntyre will attempt to prove the two applied for passports from Ottawa in the names of the 26, who then entered Canada under the guise of returning travellers.

An RCMP officer said the 26 have since settled all over western Canada, and there are "quite a few nervous people in Chinatowns all over the country."

LONG PROBE

Police, fearful of undermining the Crown's case, are reluctant to discuss too many details of their investigation, but it is known the case has been under study since last August.

At that time, RCMP Cpl. W. J. Halloran, based at Vancouver, led the special passport and visa squad in a painstaking investigation through reams of documents dating back to 1961.

SCORES OF LEADS

They traced scores of leads through "more than one" of Canada's notoriously tight-lipped Chinese communities before finally laying the charges.

Quaint Chinese Custom Nightmare for Court

Because of a quaint custom among Chinese in Canada, the Immigration Act proceedings now before magistrate's court is the kind about which newspapermen and court stenographers have nightmares.

It took 10 minutes yesterday morning, for Robert Davidson, also known as a magistrate's court official, to read the list of names and details of the charge. He didn't stuff a line.

Engineer Gives Life

BRADFORD, England (Reuters)—An English railroad engineer gave his life Wednesday in a last-minute effort to warn passengers that the train he was driving was about to crash.

Engineer John Smith blared a warning on his diesel locomotive horn just before the two-coach train slammed into a stationary mail train at the station.

Great Victory

Let's Join and Win Barry Tells Rocky

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona followed up his "great victory" in the California primary Wednesday with a plea to Governor

Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to join him in mobilizing the Republican party to win the U.S. presidency in November.

But Rockefeller, Goldwater's narrowly defeated rival in the California balloting for 86 crucial Republican convention votes, made it clear he is not halting his drive for the Republican presidential nomination.

NOT DROPPING OUT

"I'm not dropping out of anything," Rockefeller told a press conference in New York.

Republican leaders divided sharply on the meaning of Goldwater's California victory.

"It is going to be very difficult for the opposition to put together any coalition (to stop him) because they don't have the delegate votes," said former senator William F. Knowland of California. He managed Goldwater's California campaign.

Plea of 50,000 People:

Make John a Saint

VATICAN CITY (AP)—In the north Italian birthland of Pope John XXIII, a move was started Wednesday to make him a saint. A petition signed by 50,000 people in Bergamo province was presented to a bishop of the Roman Catholic Church asking for proceedings to beatify Pope John, who died a year ago Wednesday.

Beatification is a step toward canonization as a saint. Bishop Clemente Gaddi of Bergamo said the petition would be sent promptly to the Congregation of Rites at the Vatican.

The congregation handles causes for beatification and canonization. Beatification is the process of establishing that one may be publicly venerated by Roman Catholics in a particular area. It bestows the title of "blessed."

STRONG FACTOR

It will be up to Pope Paul and the Congregation of Rites to determine whether a cause for beatification should be opened. Vatican sources said a petition with so many names—showing popular devotion to John XXIII—would be a strong factor.

There is no fixed time for beatification. Pope Pius X was the last pontiff beatified and canonized.

But Afterward—Zoom!

Centenary to Come Deep in Recession

MINNA, Ont. (CP)—A professor of economics at the University of Ottawa predicted Wednesday Canada will mark its centenary in 1967 at the bottom of the next economic recession.

Dr. O. J. Firestone, vice-dean of the university's faculty of social sciences, told a Manitoba labor-management seminar sponsored by the University of Manitoba to expect a slowdown in the economy beginning in 1965 and a recession to follow.

However, he said the period of recession should be followed by a period of economic expansion "probably greater than anything we have seen since the end of the Second World War."

Dr. Firestone, a former top economist with the federal trade department, said the current economic expansion, now in its fourth year, will continue another year and predicted an increase of six to seven per cent in the gross national product.

Automation Could 'Rip Us Apart'

By DAN POWERS

EDMONTON (CP)—The time may come when society must decide whether to keep the street-corner newsboy, apartment guard, factory worker and grocery clerk, instead of allowing machines to do their jobs, a United States sociologist said Wednesday.

Dr. Burton R. Clark, an associate professor in the Centre for the Study of Higher Education at the University of California, Berkeley, said that if through research society discovered automation was ripping apart social values, then it may have to "slow down automation or stop its processes."

It would be a good idea, the sociologist said, to undertake a study of young, non-working persons in families on relief to see how they would react or adapt to a life of leisure without work—a possibility that automation has raised.

"My plea is for a great deal of research so that we can make a reasonable judgment on the effects of automation," Dr. Clark told an international con-
